'WE'VE GOT ALL THE WORKING SKILLS!

'...AND WE HAVE THE CERTIFICATES TO PROVE IT'

NVQ candidates celebrate their success at the Excelsior Plus Special Recognition Ceremony, held in St Mary's Hotel, Golf and Country Club near Pencoed.

EXCELSIOR PLUS is an NVQ initiative with Bridgend College, providing fully-funded NVQ opportunities for employees to gain nationally-recognised qualifications in the workplace.

It recently held a special recognition ceremony – to honour successful NVQ candidates, as part of the wider working skills for adults European Social Fund (ESF) programme.

Mark Jones, Principal, said: "We are delighted to celebrate not only the successes of our students but also the strong working partnership between the college and an ever-increasing number of local companies and organisations who are committed to the continuing development of their staff.

"We look forward to hearing of the continued success of all these individuals and of their employers."

Working skills for adults, incorporating the Excelsior Plus NVQ initiative, is financed by the European Social Fund through the Welsh Government.

Bridgend mastiff triumphs at Crufts

Richard Gardiner, with Chodak.

A BRIDGEND man and Chodak, a five-year-old Tibetan Mastiff, proved every dog does have its day, after walking away with a top prize at Crufts.

Chodak was one of over 25,000 dogs at Birmingham's NEC, presented by the Kennel Club, which is celebrating 140 years of promoting healthy, happy dogs, and claimed the prestigious 'Best of Breed' award last weekend.

Owner Richard Gardiner, a finance director, and Chodak, fought off competition from a number of other dogs to scoop the coveted prize, presented by the Kennel Club.

PROUD

Richard was left beaming with pride at his and Chodak's performance at the world-famous dog competition in the West Midlands.

"I have been showing for 22 years and have picked up seven Best in Breeds," he said.

He said: "It has been pretty hectic as I have shown seven dogs here but it is great to win Best in Breed."

"It is Crufts, you have just got to be here."

"It is one of the best shows around."

Police issue appeal as... LOCAL RETAIL PARK STORE IS BURGLED

POLICE in Bridgend are appealing to the public for information, following a burglary at a DIY outlet over night on Monday, February 18.

Spokesperson reported, "Access was gained to the Wickes store on Picton Court Retail Park, alongside the A48, after the culprits cut through a chain link fence and then broke into the building after cutting through the steel wall.

"A large quantity of power tools and protective clothing was taken from the premises during the night."

Detective Constable Melanie Deere of Bridgend CID said: "This was a very determined effort to commit this crime. Those responsible will have made a lot of noise while gaining access to the building, and will have needed a large vehicle to remove all of the property which was stolen."

• Anyone with any information should contact Detective Constable Deere on 101; or free and anonymously via Crimestoppers, on 0800 555111, quoting reference

Saxons and Britons battle it out in St John's eisteddfod

'As the children sang, you could feel the hwy!

NEVER mind the much-vaunted visit of Prince Charles and Camilla to the capital last Friday... Never mind the annual St. David's Day parade in Cardiff...

As I sat in the Crampton Hall of St John's School, Porthcawl, I knew I was at the very hub of these hallowed Welsh celebrations.

There was a growing sense of anticipation as the younger pupils took to the stage to perform their medley of Welsh songs and poems, a patriotic vision of red, with splashes of yellow, white and green. As soon as they started singing 'Canu'r nawr', you could feel the hwy! swelling harmoniously throughout the hall.

As always in St John's, the two-house system ensured some healthy and lively competition. Breaths were drawn from hushed peers as Saxons and Britons, in turn, took to the stage.

After some wonderful musical items, vocal and instrumental, from the years four, five and six pupils, spectators were startled out of their hushed, lyrical mood by some very arresting and engaging recitations.

Year six pupil, Holly Sinclair won points for the Britons with her beautifully delivered and feisty version of 'The Bogeyman' by Jack Prelutsky and year four pupil, Ella Rees won points for the Saxons with her chirpy, skilful performance of Roger McGough's 'Cousin Reggie', both delivered with the brio, poise and expertise of future stars.

Another highlight of the morning was the senior vocal section, this year offering the touching and haunting Welsh folk song, 'Lisa Lan', a lover's lament for his lost sweetheart. Two Saxons, Morgan Bennett and Bibiana Viazanni, battled it out against one Briton, the talented Holly Sinclair.

On this occasion, Bibi piped the other two to the post with her perfect pitch, beautiful pronunciation, and her overall technical prowess. But Holly and Morgan also gave excellent performances, with the judges commenting, in particular, on the "plaintive", "soulful" quality of Morgan's voice.

St John's eisteddfod is unique in its consistent production of quality French and German items, alongside the traditional Welsh and English fare. It was particularly pleasing to see and hear this component being continued this year, as the numbers choosing to study foreign languages in this country continue to plummet.

The afternoon saw further touching, rousing and highly creative performances. Years seven and nine delivered some excellent Welsh plays, based on local legends and senior instrumentalists and vocalists took to the stage. Joshua Olsen and Tessa Castanera-Webber, joined Bibi, Holly and Bethan Williams in the vocal section.

The enriching and varied day culminated, as usual, in the "battle" of the house choirs. Months of furtive practice (and eavesdropping outside closed doors!) always result in superb performances from both teams, conducted by senior house members.

This year was no exception. Both choirs staged memorable, emotional performances of Men Of Harlech, but, after serious deliberation, the Saxons were victorious, with their highly inventive production making full use of their excellent soloists and instrumental accompaniment.

The Saxons also won the overall competition, announced, as always, to rapturous applause – and just the odd grimace from disappointed Britons! Thanks must go again to Mrs Mead for her tireless work and production expertise, ensuring that the high-lights concert last Tuesday was a resounding success.

As I gathered my wilting daff and, yes, wiped a tear from my eye, I reflected on the tremendous talent of all our youngsters, not just in St John's, but in the whole of Porthcawl.

Had this been in the West End, you'd have had to pay £100 plus for tickets. Beautiful. This is what school eisteddfodau are made of.

This is what makes Wales so very special. Cynru am Byth. Porthcawl am Byth. Bendigedig iawn.

Louder than words award for council

BCBC'S commitment to providing accessible services has been recognised by Action on Hearing Loss, a UK-based charity that supports people with hearing loss and tinnitus.

The Louder than Words charter mark acknowledges the levels of service and accessibility that the county borough council provides for customers and employees who are deaf or have hearing loss.

The council has provided front-line staff with deaf awareness and sign language training as recommended by Bridgend Deaf Club.

Council services were then benchmarked against the charity's 10 Louder than Words accessibility standards, which highlighted good practice in several areas.

A council spokesperson said: "The report also suggested areas the council could improve including purchasing portable hearing loops for use during staff training, reviewing information provided at staff inductions and adopting new procedures for maintaining loop systems.

"The council responded by purchasing assistive technology, improving consultation with people who are deaf or suffering hearing loss, and providing staff with further British Sign Language at Work training to learn business-specific signs."

Deputy Leader of the council, Coun David Sage, said: "Staff in our front-line services have embraced the training they've received from Action on Hearing Loss.

It's great that their efforts have led to the charter mark being awarded.

"Working with Bridgend Deaf Club highlighted areas that allowed us to improve the accessibility of council services.

"It's important that the council is able to communicate with everyone, so we will keep working alongside local disability groups to ensure that council services continue to become more accessible."

'Dial O for the Operator'

AT the March meeting of Merthyr Mawr WI, president Margaret Batten welcomed our speaker, Pamela Robson, whose theme was 'Dial O for the Operator'.

On leaving school in the 60s, Pamela joined the GPO as a telephone operator.

She described the work and traced the development of the telephone system over the years.

She spoke of party lines, telephone kiosks with the A and B buttons and the role of the telephonist in making long distance calls. To make a call from Manchester to Scotland would involve contacting several telephone exchanges.

Her talk brought back many memories for most of us and showed such a contrast to today, in the light of modern technology, with the wide use of mobile phones, texting and emails.

She is, in her own words, an example of 'living history'.

At the February meeting, we held a bring and buy sale of books and plants to raise money for the country women of the world. Gwerfil Gardner organised a quiz and this was followed by an enjoyable fish and chip supper.

Members were reminded of the walk to be held in April in Bryngarw Park and the half yearly council meeting. The next meeting will be held on April 3 at Ewenny Community Hall. FC

Foodbank gets a boost from MP

BRIDGEND MP Madeleine Moon has delivered another cheque to the Bridgend Foodbank to help boost their finances.

She explained: "Completing these questionnaires helps support our local charities who are working in our community. The Bridgend Foodbank recently contacted me regarding their need for a van to help deliver their supplies to the centres.

"I suggested funding streams they could apply to but if anyone has any ideas or can help raise some money to support this venture please contact them on the telephone numbers below.

"Also talking to the volunteers they are running short of a number of foodstuffs – pasta sauce, orange juice, coffee, small cereal, tinned carrots, sponge puddings and packet soup, if anyone can help with donations."

The Trussell Trust charity partners with churches to open foodbanks and currently there are 23 foodbanks in operation in Wales. There are four in north Wales and 19 in south Wales. A further four foodbanks are in development, opening in the next three months, one in south Wales and three in north Wales.

"They have found the main reason why people are using foodbanks is due to benefit changes or delays – 46 per cent. A further 18 per cent use them due to low income, 10 per cent because of debt and around 5 per cent of customers were homeless.

"Other causes are domestic violence, sickness, delayed wages and absence of free school meals during school holidays.

"With the changes coming in April to benefits, the rising fuel and food costs we could see even more people coming to the foodbanks for help this year," she warned.

The foodbank has six centres across the borough where food can be

THE development of a local education action plan is progressing well, Bridgend County Borough Council (BCBC) cabinet members have heard.

A recent Estyn inspection report of Bridgend's education services found that strengths far outweigh any areas for improvements, and that no areas were deemed to be unsatisfactory.

Coun Huw David, cabinet member for children and young people, said: "Estyn inspectors found many strengths

BRYNCETHIN PRIMARY IS 'PLEASED' WITH REPORT

CABINET members have welcomed a report praising the teaching and learning at Bryncethin Primary.

The Estyn inspection last autumn found most pupils achieve good standards. The curriculum is rich and thoughtfully planned and there is a very strong commitment from all staff for continuous improvement.

A Bridgend County Borough Council spokesperson said: "Inspectors rated both the school's current performance and prospects for improvement as good, and noted that the innovative 'Parents' Council' has had a measurable impact on raising pupils' standards and wellbeing."

Inspectors also found that:

- A particularly strong feature of the school is the progress many pupils make in improving their reading skills.

- There are very positive supportive relationships between staff, pupils and parents.

- The provision for older pupils to support younger pupils is particularly good and effective.

- The school's work with agencies to support pupils, especially those with additional learning needs, is a particular strength and helps to ensure all are fully integrated and developing their independence within the school community.

Partnerships with parents, the community and other schools are very good and contribute to realising the school's aims effectively.

Coun Huw David, cabinet member for children and young people, said: "We welcome this positive report for Bryncethin."

"The report includes recommendations around improving attendance and punctuality, ensuring that assessments are accurate and raising standards in the national teacher assessments at key stage 2 in science. This helps the school understand what it is doing well and what it can build on for the future."

Head Andrea Wood added: "All at the school are extremely pleased with the findings of the inspection team."

"It is most reassuring to be told that all teachers demonstrate a high standard of teaching and that the school provides a very positive ethos where pupils are happy, well cared for and supported."

"We will address the recommendations made in the report and ensure that pupils continue to receive high quality learning experiences."

Bryngarw is to become 'beacon for the tourists'

BRYNGARW House and Bryngarw Country Park will come together under an exciting new brand to create a single, 21st Century tourist attraction, cabinet members have agreed.

Plans include revamping Bryngarw as a visitor attraction, combining all that is good about the park and its local communities. The aim is to broaden its role by developing learning opportunities at every level, up to and including formal training opportunities in the conservation, hospitality and tourism industry.

A BCBC spokesperson said: "It's envisaged the park will become the new gateway to the Garw Valley with all its attractions, including cycling and walking. The new-look Bryngarw brand will also include the growth of its B-Leaf scheme, a horticultural work-based project for people with disabilities."

Work has already been completed on the Grade II listed country house's ICT facilities, including introducing Wi-Fi for guests and conference users.

Further internal refurbishment is planned to enhance the house's reputation as a quality restaurant, event and conference setting.

The cabinet heard how opening hours, pricing and dining options will now be reviewed as part of the rebranding exercise, and a new marketing strategy focussed around drawing visitors to Bryngarw will be formulated.

Coun Lyn Morgan, cabinet member of wellbeing, said: "What we're proposing is to bring together all that is great about Bryngarw into one seamless, quality visitor experience."

Arriva action on Maesteg line is welcomed

S H A D O W Transport Minister Byron Davies has met train bosses to talk about problems on the Maesteg line.

He said that as a result, Arriva has now promised to allow some late-running trains, in a bid to reduce the number of trains being terminated at Tondur.

Mr Davies met Mike Bagshaw, commercial director of Arriva Trains Wales, to discuss the problems caused when trains are terminated at Tondur, leaving passengers stranded at the station and other would-be passengers waiting at stations higher up the line for trains that never arrive.

Mr Davies contacted Arriva after receiving complaints from passengers about the service.

One constituent complained about trains terminating at Tondur and also raised the issue of some of the Maesteg trains leaving Cardiff being too full to take all passengers wishing to travel.

There is also confusion at Cardiff Station about which platform the train will depart from, leaving passengers scurrying around between platforms.

Mr Davies had already raised the issue of terminations before and he said that the decision by BCBC to stop funding the Maesteg Rail Bus had exacerbated the situation.

He went on: "We had a very full discussion and I was told that some of the terminations during the period September to December last year, when the company conducted a review, were caused by problems with signalling or other rail infrastructure which is down to Network Rail. I have raised these matters myself in meetings I have had with Network Rail."

Mr Bagshaw told Mr Davies that the company was aware of the problems when trains were turned around at Tondur.

Mr Davies has now secured a pledge from Arriva that trains will only be terminated at Tondur if they are running more than 16 minutes late.

He added: "This is a very welcome move by Arriva and acknowledges the problems that these terminations were causing. This decision will allow more late-running trains to run through to Maesteg although there will, of course, be a knock-on effect on following trains."

"However, I think that people would prefer a train to come late than not at all, which is what happens at the moment. I accept that if it more than 16 minutes late, then it will terminate at Tondur in a bid to get the timetable back on track. There has to be a line drawn somewhere."

The issue of overcrowding on the trains was also discussed by Arriva, who say that they are unable to put on longer trains despite the fact that all the platforms along the line have been lengthened, because all the rolling stock allocated to the franchise is in use.

Mr Davies said that there was a desperate need for a passing loop to be constructed along the Maesteg Line to increase rail frequency to a half hourly service.

This would reduce overcrowding and also lessen the impact if trains were terminated, as passengers would have to wait half an hour for the next train, rather than an hour as at present.

Bridge ahead of the game with technology!

WHAT has bridge in common with rugby, but not with soccer? For over 10 years, rugby has embraced try-line technology, but soccer is only just scheduling goal recognition.

In bridge, centralised computerised scoring has been around for about 20 years, but over the past year, that technology has been enhanced and placed on the playing table, with the Portcawl Club being one of the pioneers.

A year ago, the club purchased the latest recording technology (Bridge mates), which enables players to enter their scores into a small table top unit, that wirelessly transmits the results instantaneously to a computer, enabling the evening's scores to be displayed on a monitor within seconds of the last hand being played.

The most elderly of players, who may not even be able to handle a TV remote control, find the system so user-friendly and fascinating – they are unwilling to defer to their younger counterparts.

Having become familiar with the technology in just one weekly session, the club now uses it at all their sessions, and is amongst the more technologically adept in the UK.

March 4: first, Emer Disley and Pat Haworth; second, Trish Saunders and Marian Evans.

The club meets three times a week, Saturday and Thursday at the Awel-y-Mor centre, and Monday at the Rest Hotel, 7pm-10.15pm – visitors welcome at any time.

On March 14, the club will be running its men's and ladies pairs championship.

MPs urged to 'go further' for Fairtrade

THE Bridgend MP, Madeleine Moon, met Frank Olok, coordinator of Malawi Fairtrade Network, during Fairtrade Fortnight to hear about the TOUGH challenges facing smallholder farmers.

The theme of Fairtrade Fortnight is 'Go Further for Fairtrade' and Frank Olok asked MPs to do more to support Fairtrade in the coming year.

The Fairtrade Foundation launched a new campaign for Fairtrade Fortnight calling for urgent action to support the smallholder farmers, who produce 70 per cent of the world's food, but are currently half the world's hungry people.

The MP reported: "Frank Olok presented me with a copy of the report to launch the campaign, 'Powering up Smallholder Farmers to Make Food Fair'. The aim of this campaign is to raise awareness about the daily plight of farmers in developing countries who are amongst the poorest people in the world.

"Despite growing most of the world's food they still struggle to make a sustainable living, get access to finance and improve their and their communities' economic, and, social situation."

The campaign launches a five-point agenda for action and is calling on the Prime Minister, David Cameron, to use his influence, when the UK hosts the G8 Summit in Northern Ireland in June, to put smallholder farmers at the heart of Governments trade policy and international and national business practice.

The Malawi Fairtrade Network represents around 10 Fairtrade producer organisations with a joint membership of 22,000 farmers. The report highlights how much we rely on smallholder farmers for our everyday foods. Around 30 million smallholders produce most of the world's coffee and cocoa foods, while tens of millions more produce tea, bananas and sugar.

Recycled festive trees raise a total of £2,200 for charity

RESIDENTS of Bridgend county borough have stepped up efforts to recycle their real Christmas trees, with the number recycled this year topping 760 – nearly 500 of which were collected through the council's kerbside tree recycling scheme.

Their efforts meant that over £2,200 will be donated to local charities, Macmillan Cancer Support and the Mayor's Charity Appeal; an increase on the £1500 raised during the pilot last year.

The seasonal scheme asks residents to put out their Christmas trees for collection with their usual weekly recycling, in exchange for a minimum £3 donation to charity.

The collections were made by BCBC's recycling partners May Gurney and were funded through a Sustainable Waste Management grant, so that all donations could go to the nominated charities.

The trees were taken to BCBC's Highways recycling centre for chipping and composting, meaning they will also help the local environment.

Coun Phil White, BCBC cabinet member for communities, said: "After the success of last year's pilot, I'm pleased to see so many households take advantage of the scheme.

"Not only has it helped the county borough to get 2013 off to a green start, it's also raised a significant sum of money for local charities.

"Thank you to everyone who took part – let's hope we can top this effort again next year!"

BRIDGEND Rotary Club held its annual international evening at Court Colman Manor Hotel, Pen-y-Fai on March 4 with guest speaker Rhodri Morgan.

He was introduced by his successor as First Minister, the Bridgend AM, Carwyn Jones, who paid warm tributes to Rhodri, and outlined the influence he had exercised over him as a young politician.

Mr Morgan responded with a speech of wit and humour, as he ranged over many topics from his early life, his political career and even his love of sport.

The vote of thanks was given by Dr Bob Broughton, formerly head of the BMA in Wales, who related his own anecdotes about Rhodri. WM

Air cadets' keep feet on the ground for base visit!

RAF Air Cadets from Kenfig Hill, Bridgend, Port Talbot and Pencoed spent their Saturday morning at Hunter Flying Ltd at St Athan.

Twenty eight cadets and seven staff were welcomed by John Sparkes, chief engineer. They were given a talk on the various aircraft inside the hangar and the type of work being carried out there.

The cadets were then allowed to take photos and get up close to the aircraft, something which would never seem possible. The staff were just as enthusiastic to see the cadets, as this was an opportunity to see close-up many aircraft which are only ever seen from a distance.

For some, the lure of the cockpit was too much and they just had to climb aboard.

Hunter Flying Ltd is due to move to larger premises in June this year; their team comprises highly skilled full-time and part-time staff, as well as volunteers, all of whom have great expertise and experience in the aero industry.

Sgt Peckham (ATC) who arranged the visit, said he was looking forward to arranging another in the summer to the new premises.

Sgt Peckham would like to extend his thanks to John Sparkes and his team for the visit, which was thoroughly enjoyed by those that attended cadets and staff alike.

EX-GLAMORGAN STAR TO RUN IN LONDON MARATHON

Hugh's appeal: 'Help support me in the battle against cancer'

REPORT by TIM CHAPMAN

ONE of the reasons that the England cricket team has reached the summit of the global game in recent years is thanks to Welshman Hugh Morris, who has strong connections to Cowbridge.

He has fulfilled a number of roles in the hierarchy of the England and Wales Cricket Board in recent years, and is currently its managing director.

As a player, Hugh performed at the highest level, for Glamorgan Cricket Club as captain, and as an opener for England in the early 1990s – but his greatest battle took place just over a decade ago.

Hugh explained that just before Christmas in 2002 he received the worst possible news.

"On December 15, I was diagnosed with throat cancer. As you can imagine, the news turned my world upside-down.

"I spent the next five months undergoing three major operations in Reading, and six weeks of radiotherapy in Oxford.

"It is only due to the outstanding skill and care of my consultant, Rogan Corbridge and his team, and the support of my family, that I am here to tell the tale."

Hugh is a survivor, but his experience has made him acutely aware of the fears and consequences of suffering from throat cancer.

"Over the past 10 years, approximately 80,000 people have been diagnosed with this form of cancer, and whilst more than half will be cured, current treatment methods can have a devastating effect on the lives of patients, affecting their ability to speak, eat, taste, smell, or see.

RESTAURANT HOSTS CHARITY EVENING

A MAESTEG restaurant recently hosted a charity night in aid of Voluntary Services Overseas (VSO).

The evening at the Montaj restaurant raised almost £500 for the charity, which is involved in numerous projects in poorer countries.

Coun Richard Collins told The GEM: "I would like to thank

Mr Majnoo Miah and his team for their amazing generosity. We had a wonderful night."

PORTHCAWL 'SLEEP OUT' HIGHLIGHTS HOMELESS ISSUE

PHOTOGRAPHS by
KEITH E MORGAN

Preparing for the Sleep Out!

THE homeless charity, Emmaus, whose president is Terry Waite CBE, has moved into Porthcawl, with its second shop opening in six months.

Emmaus has opened a furniture store in the former Carconomy shop. The first is in Bridgend on Station Hill.

A spokesperson said: "Emmaus is a charity with a difference; its slogan is 'A Charity That Works' due to it providing a home and a job for formerly homeless people to help themselves.

Emmaus Communities enable people to move on from homelessness, to providing work and a home in a supportive, family environment.

"We hope its first Emmaus community home in Wales will open in Bridgend in the next year. Its residents will come off benefits in exchange for a home and a job.

"Can you imagine what it feels like to have nowhere to sleep? 450 people in Bridgend are homeless!

"Forty five people joined our Sleep Out on March 1 to raise awareness of the huge homeless issues in Porthcawl and Bridgend."

The Sleep Out took place from 8pm under the band stand, John Street, Porthcawl, when the 45 slept out in cardboard boxes. The Mayor of Bridgend county borough council, Coun Marlene Thomas, visited the volunteers on Saturday morning. Emmaus being one of her charities for 2012/13.

Coun Jeff Tildesley, vice chair of Emmaus South Wales, together with John Noble, chair of Emmaus and volunteers took part in the sleep out.

For further information contact www.emmausouth-wales.org.uk. Furniture donations can be made at the shop or by telephoning 01656 771555.

THE staff and children at Omore Vale primary school are to be congratulated on becoming one of the few schools in Wales to gain its third green flag in the Eco-Schools programme.

The assessor was impressed by the whole school's enthusiasm and the involvement of those taking part.

The school has participated in a number of events under the Welsh Government programme of Education for Sustainable Development and Global Citizenship, including 'Food for Thought' the 'Big Fair Trade Bake-Off' and national campaigns, such as 'Size of Wales' and 'World Water Day' - and intends to continue with its hard work, to attain platinum status in two years' time.

The school will be holding a book fair between March 18-22, from 3.15pm to 4pm. A £1.00 gift voucher will be given towards the purchase of a book.

On Friday, there will be a fancy dress 'garden theme' at the school, it is hoped that children will dress as gnomes, insects, flowers etc, and a prize will be given for the best-dressed child in each class.

Budding musical stars

Anyone interested in taking part in a musical show, is invited to go along to auditions for the production of 'Jekyll and Hyde' which are being held at Ysgol Gyfun Gymraeg Llangynwyd on April 6, at 12 noon. For further information, telephone 218462.

The musical will take place at Maesteg town hall between October 23-26 and is produced by the Maesteg Amateur Operatic Society. It holds rehearsals at Plasnewydd primary school during term times on Monday and Friday evenings between 7-9m, and will hold its AGM at the school on March 18.

The society was launched in 1943 during the Second World War years, and its first show was the Desert Song.

Maesteg Rotary Club The club is to be congratulated for its generous donation of ten computers to Maesteg Comprehensive and Ysgol Gyfun Gymraeg Llangynwyd schools.

They were produced by Sony UK Technology Centre in Pencoed and are credit card sized Raspberry Pi type.

Spine-chilling atmosphere and some ghostly figures...

NEWTON is one of two villages within the sea-side town of Porthcawl and dates back to Norman times; it had an active creek from 1501, and a port to transport cargo by 1601, where two tons of iron were shipped from Newton to Somerset on a vessel called Trynitive of Aberthaw.

The port also attracted smugglers, who offloaded their wares at Newton Weir.

St John's Church, which towers above the landscape of this quaint village, has unknown beginnings, but it has been suggested that the founder was Richard de Cardiff, with William, Earl of Gloucester being responsible for its construction and provision of funds.

Norman knights have also been linked with the church under the Order of St John of Jerusalem with the De Sanford family as its founders around the end of the 12th century and into the early 13th century.

With this theory in mind, William, Earl of Gloucester, witnessed an early Margam Charter around 1147 - 1183.

The Lords from the Pembroke, Herbert, and Lougher manors are mentioned in connection with the church over the following few centuries with examples of work from 13th, 14th and 15th relating to the south porch, although little other documentation remains today.

During the 15th century many parts of the church were rebuilt as recorded by Mr G E Halliday. These include the nave, the tower, the west doorway and the chancel.

Other features, such as the stained glass windows and the pulpit, were rebuilt during the Victorian era. Places of burial usually create an atmosphere of peace, and St John's churchyard is no exception, although people of importance to the area of Porthcawl are buried within the church itself.

The remains of Richard Lougher, who died in 1701, along with other Lords of Tythegstone, occupy the tombstones around the floor of the chancel.

The churchyard at the heart of Newton contains the remains of natives who drowned in tragic accidents, by falling prey to the treacherous waters of Newton Point.

An outbreak of cholera began to circulate throughout Newton in 1866. This was because of the poor sanitation within the area, which, unfortunately, spread rapidly throughout Porthcawl, causing many unnecessary deaths.

Among other resting places for citizens of our past, the bodies of three young boys from a Dutch West-Indian ship called Planters Welvaart, were buried in the cemetery on June 3 1770, which produces a sad picture of life surrounding the cruel sea at Newton port.

The death of William Turpin, on June 26 1774, who was a gentleman and clock-maker from Kenfig, seems to have some significance for the churchyard's history.

The graveyard was a popular burial place within the parish of Newton Nottage, and by 1932 was declared full to capacity. A new municipal cemetery on the outskirts of Porthcawl and on the main road towards Cornelly was opened on July 23 1934, for the purpose of the deceased residents of modern times.

The stillness of any silent graveyard can paint an eerie picture and send shivers down the spines of unsuspecting visitors.

The spine-chilling atmosphere around St John's churchyard seems to house a plethora of ghostly figures that seem unwilling to leave this place of rest. Although, would any soul at peace want to stay around their place of burial?

The invisible 'Lich' is said to stretch its icy fingers onto unsuspecting visitors' shoulders, sending them into a world of panic.

Nobody knows what or who this invisible force is, but it seems determined to make its presence known in the empty churchyard.

Is this energy vying for the attention of the inhabitants of this earthly plane?

The seemingly solid image of a young lady wearing a grey dress has been seen on a few occasions, roaming the graveyard as if she is searching for something or even someone.

Who could this forlorn soul be, and why does she choose to wander the church grounds alone?

On the evening of Hallowe'en, the unnatural sighting of a man seemingly hanging from a particular tree at midnight has been recognised for centuries, only for this frightful image to fade into oblivion.

Could this ill-fated person be at the centre of a hanging many years ago, or just a product of the imagination? Fact or fiction? Only you can decide...

PUPILS PLACE TIME CAPSULE AT LOCAL PUB

Pupils with the time capsule.

PUPILS from Coychurch Primary School sent a message to the future by burying a time capsule in the grounds of a new pub and restaurant in the heart of Bridgend.

Uniforms, timetables, award badges, work books, fundraising kits, a medal from the diamond jubilee, newspapers, stationery and a letter explaining each item were all included in the pupils' time capsule.

The Cherry Laurel pub, which has been built by Marston's Inns and Taverns, will be able to welcome 180 drinkers and diners and offer a range of drinks and fresh, quality family-focused pub food.

Mrs Hurry, head-teacher at Coychurch Primary, said: "This was such a great idea and really challenged the children to think about history by leaving something for people to discover in the future."

A plaque will also be put up in the pub, with the date of when the capsule was buried.

"The time capsule is not only a fascinating project for youngsters to take part in, but it's also quite symbolic for us too - we're at the exciting beginning of something new with Cherry Laurel, which will be around for generations of families to enjoy," said pub manager Jon North.

Cattle 'neglect': another view

FIRST of all, I would like to say that I have no affiliation with any of the people involved in the story concerning cattle 'neglect' in the March 7 issue.

I simply have a wider understanding of the farming background than the people who took it upon themselves to raise the matter.

With regard to the report, I can only assume that the people who have reported the claim of 'neglect' in reference to the cattle in Llanmaes/Frampton have no experience of farming whatsoever.

Reader's opinion

The last thing these farmers want (along with virtually every other farming family) is to neglect their animals, and have them live in conditions such as those described or, even worse, die.

Farms are, essentially, a business. Would any business person neglect their main livelihood? No, I didn't think so.

Not everything in the countryside is fluffy and sweet-smelling. (Name and address supplied)

New mentoring centre calls for more volunteers in Bridgend

VOLUNTEERS of all ages are needed for a new centre in Bridgend.

Thanks to a grant of almost £500,000 from the Big Lottery Fund, the Bridge Mentoring Plus Scheme is looking for volunteers to help run their family centre which will be open in April in Bridgend town centre.

Open six days a week, the centre will have something to offer people of all ages. The venue boasts a large lounge with a coffee bar, conference and training room and kitchen and bathroom facilities suitable for those with disabilities. Friendly staff will be at hand to offer advice and signposting or to simply chat over a cuppa!

Pre-arranged activities will take place during the afternoons and evenings but the mornings will be open to everyone. Young people will also have exclusive use of the centre two evenings a week to meet friends and chill.

Principal officer, Angela James said: "This is an exciting new project that the people of the borough can be part of. Individuals of all ages are invited to become members of steering groups have a say in the family centre's activities and development. We are also encouraging people to get involved by volunteering in the day to day running of the centre."

"Volunteers will be able to take part in many activities including IT, arts and crafts, meeting and greeting, office administration, cookery, gardening and lots more, as well as having a say on what they think should be run at the centre."

For more information, telephone Angela James at the Bridge Mentoring Plus Scheme on 01656 647891 (Mondays to Thursdays) or email: angela.james@thebridgegempops.org.uk / training@the-bridgegempops.org.uk.

Quiz League report

ON Monday, March 4, the champions-elect Llangewydd Arms, had their usual high-scoring win; this time Pheasant Poachers were the unfortunate recipients of a mauling.

The score was incidental, 63 to 32. Defeats like this can be very demoralising. Tyrisha Nomads just couldn't get going in their match with Crown Inn 'A' who were in very good form.

They had a convincing win away to the Nomads by 51 points to 41. The other two games were closer. Mackworth Arms won 48-40 at the Six Bells, and Tondur Railway Club had a welcome victory against Tyrisha Royals by 48 to 42.

In Division 2, the two top teams were beaten, but remain joint first. Crown Inn 'B' had a surprising loss at home to Pheasant Gamekeepers by 48 points to 43 and Greenmeadow went down at home to Cabo Roche, 51-45, who are now only two points behind the leaders.

Laleston Inn 'A' are also in range as they won at Oldcastle 'B', 50-45.

Finally, the gap at the foot of the League is now very wide after Laleston Inn 'B' beat Pyle RFC 50-40.

Here are your four teasers:

1. Which band named themselves after a fictional band from the novel 'A Clockwork Orange'?

2. Which metallic element is the lightest known solid and derives its name from the Greek word for 'stone'?

3. In the year 2000, which Aston Villa player became the first Welshman to be sent off at Wembley?

4. Which classic World War Two memoir by William Stanley Moss tells of a daring raid in 1944, in which a German general was kidnapped on the island of Crete?

A RUDGE (for Quiz League)

4. Ill Met by Moonlight.
3. Mark Delaney.
2. Lethium.

AMs oppose seafront parking charges in Porthcawl

PLANS to introduce car parking charges along Porthcawl seafront are being opposed by Suzy Davies and Byron Davies, Welsh Conservative regional AMs for south Wales west, who have sent objections to the council about the proposals which are out for public consultation.

The council intends to install parking ticket machines along The Esplanade and West Drive. Motorists parking along the front from the lifeboat station as far as the junction with Lougher Gardens, will be expected to buy a parking ticket. No details of charges are available as yet.

Byron Davies, Shadow Minister for transport and regeneration, said he had been lobbied by residents who are likely to be affected by this move.

He said: "Residents living in the side streets leading from the seafront fear that motorists unwilling or unable to pay will try to park in their streets, exacerbating an already difficult situation."

"There is a very real danger that cars which now park along the length of the seafront will be displaced into already congested side streets."

"Residents already feel that they are under siege during the summer when there are insufficient vacant spaces along the main road and motorists trawl through the streets leading off the seafront desperate to park anywhere they can, including across driveways."

"It is crucial that a seaside resort like Porthcawl offers sufficient parking for visitors and on-street parking like this is crucial."

Suzy Davies, Shadow Welsh tourism minister, said that she worried about the adverse impact such a move could have on the tourism industry in the town.

"Porthcawl is a leading seaside resort and it is imperative that day trippers coming by car are encouraged and not driven away."

"Porthcawl serves a hinterland of valley areas like Maesteg, Ogmore and Garw which are all within the borough and whose residents regard Porthcawl as their bit of the coast."

"These residents are also Bridgend Council taxpayers and they enjoy a trip to Porthcawl. They patronise shops and cafes and come year round including winter."

"The council should also remember that Neath Port Talbot Council has recently rejected plans to charge visitors to park on Aberavon seafront."

"That means that visitors will know that they can drive a few miles along the coast to visit a resort where they can park for free and still enjoy sea views and fresh air. This could result in the loss of a major slice of the day tripper market to Aberavon."

Mrs Davies said that Porthcawl town centre would also be affected by any drop in visitor numbers.

"I am not only talking about businesses geared to visitors like ice cream parlours but also shops generally. At the moment, our High Streets are under intense pressure. Nothing should be done to make it more difficult or costly for people to carry on visiting the town."

Coychurch superheroes show their pedal power

Coychurch's superheroes get on their bikes!

PUPILS at the Coychurch Primary have shown that they are cape-able of being cycle-to-school heroes!

The Incredible Hulk, Catwoman, Spiderman and all their friends made the super effort to use pedal power to get to school as part of cycling charity, Sustrans' Big Pedal competition.

Children from the school donated £1 to the charity to dress as their favourite superhero and cycle or scooter to school on the first day of the competition, which runs until Wednesday, March 20.

More than a dozen primary schools from Bridgend County Borough are getting involved with this year's competition, which sees schools across the UK battling to win virtual UK stage races by biking or travelling to school.

Over 950 schools across the UK competed for the prizes in last year's competition, with over one million miles being cycled or scooted, saving over £350,000 in fuel. This year, the super cyclists can rack up the miles to win prizes ranging from bike storage to cycle stunt displays for their schools.

Coun Huw David, Bridgend County Borough Council's cabinet member for children and young people, said: "It's great that our schools are working with Sustrans to encourage cycling and scooting to school because it's a fantastic way for children to stay fit and healthy. Well done to all the children who dressed up and cycled to school - you all looked super. The teachers looked quite good as well!"

Miss V Jones, teacher and Bike It champion at Coychurch Primary School, said: "Coychurch Primary School is proud to support the work of Sustrans and believe it is very important for us to encourage our pupils to find safe, healthy routes to school."

"A big 'well done' to all the super-hero children, parents and teachers who cycled, walked and came on their scooter to school! It was wonderful to see so many vehicles in the bike shed. Keep up the good work!"

Malcolm Shepherd, Sustrans' chief executive, said: "The average primary school journey is just 1.5 miles - the perfect distance to walk or cycle. Every year The Big Pedal helps tens of thousands of families rediscover the fun and freedom of cycling to school, get fit and save money at the same time."

"With the Welsh Government set to introduce the Active Travel Bill, promotions such as the Big Pedal are crucial in helping families discover the safe routes that exist in their communities."

"Evidence shows how children that cycle to school regularly are more active and better learners - it's time for us all to get on our bikes!"

Who wants to build what and where?

Mr Brian Moss - Twin Oaks Derlwyn Road, Tondur - 2-3m height reduction of Beech tree, 4-5m height reduction of Oak tree and 3-4m crown reduction of Sycamore tree.

Pupils raise funds for two charities

PENCOED Comprehensive's year-12 were delighted to meet Dylan this week, when he came to their assembly to receive a cheque for £2,010, raised by the tremendous efforts of year 12 at their Christmas fayre, completed as part of their Welsh Baccalaureate qualification.

It was a unanimous decision to donate the money raised to Dylan's Dreams and they hope that it will help Dylan to take the trip of his dreams.

They were also proud to learn that they had raised the most money of any one group in one event. A great achievement!

Year-13 were also able to hand over a cheque for £933 to Noah's Ark children's charity as a result of their team enterprise, as part of their Welsh Baccalaureate.

They were pleased that the money raised would help support Noah's Ark new build project, which will improve the facilities available to those in need. SD

Talbot Community Centre
FOLLOWING the Easter lunch on Good Friday, March 29, an Easter bonnet parade will be held, with a prize for the best hat. Known for their entertaining trips, the Talbot have organised the first two for 2013:

On June 20, they have arranged a visit to the Swansea Marina followed by a trip down the River Tawe. There will be two coaches, with passengers from the first enjoying a trip on the river followed by tea and passengers from the second coach enjoying lunch, followed by the trip on the river. (Both meals consist of fish and chips!). There are only a few places left.

On November 20, there will be a full day trip to the Birmingham Bullring and Christmas market.

The day will be rounded off with an evening visit to the National Indoor Arena to see the Military Tattoo Show (6 pm). The cost of the coach and a ticket to the show is just £35 (places are selling quickly).

For more information about the Talbot's activities or to book one of the trips and avoid disappointment, ring Cheryl Butcher on 01656 749754.

Wellbeing centre
Activities being held by the Mental Health Matters, at the Talbot Community Centre, Prince Road, Kenfig Hill, on March 20:

Music Workshop with Valley & Vale from 1.30 pm to 2.30 pm. Talk by P.C. Paul Evans, Hate Crime Officer from 3pm-4pm; Bingo from 3pm to 4pm; reading group 4pm-5pm.; plus social afternoon

SHOUT Forum
At the last meeting, which was well attended, the speaker from Trading Standards gave a very informative talk which was enjoyed by SHOUT members.

The next meeting of the SHOUT Forum will be held at Theo's Charity Shop, Bridge Street, Kenfig Hill on Costume competition winners - Sam (M) & Thomas (B) Flanagan & Erin Evans (B) - all Class 1, Callum Young (C) & Tara Bennett (C) - Class 2, Sam Maddock (M) & Ellie Rees (C) - Class 3, Ben Jackson (B) & Lauren Howe (C) - Class 4, Cai Quarry (M) & Caitlin Thomas (C) - Class 5, Liam Evans (T), Shauna Lewis (B) & Paige Cochrane (T) - all Class 6 and Ryan Legg (C) & Eryn-Mae Franklyn (C) - Class 7.

The final scores were - 1st Mynydd Y Castell (C) on 326 points - 2nd Mynydd Margam (M) on 316 points - 3rd Mynydd Baeden (B) on 283 points and 4th Mynydd Tylawyn (T) on 207 points.

Mr Davies, the headteacher, thanked members of the staff who worked exceptionally hard to make the St David's Day celebrations go well; also the parents, grandparents and family friends who supported the pupils with their art work and their costumes.

Author, Jack Trelawny, will be visiting the school today to meet with year-2 pupils from Mynydd Cynffig Infants School and with Year 3 & 4 pupils from the Junior School.

He will be providing a 45-minute educational and entertaining show, as well as a book signing session afterwards for those pupils who wish to purchase any of his books.

News from 2117 (Kenfig Hill)

Cadet Nathan is flying high!

EARLY February saw a return to Dundee for ISCFs Nathan Cooper, after poor weather in 2012 cut short his air cadet pilot scheme course.

So once again he took the long journey to Tayside Aviation to resume his training. The week started with snow which made way for blue skies.

The week went well and after nine hours of flying, his instructor decided the time had come for Cadet Flt Sgt Cooper to go solo.

Nathan climbed aboard the Grub Heron (G115 D2) aircraft for his solo flight.

After completing a successful landing, he was looking forward to being presented with his pilot's wings. He said: "The course and flying solo for the first time was an amazing experience that I will never forget."

Flt Lt Barry C Thomas RAFVR(T), Officer Commanding, said: "Cadet Flight Sergeant Cooper had worked hard to attain this achievement and accumulated in the successful conclusion by him gaining his pilot's wings."

Pupils' Fairtrade treasure hunt

ST DAVID'S Church in Wales Primary, which is committed to supporting and using Fairtrade products, celebrated Fairtrade fortnight with a variety of events.

The Fairtrade committee led an assembly, asking the whole school to think about what they had eaten for breakfast.

Parents, grandparents and the local community to come in for a special coffee afternoon and as well as taking part in Fairtrade activities in our classroom, the children went on a Fairtrade treasure hunt around the school grounds.

Cloudy2Clear Windows - Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes - not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Branch Manager Phil Powell feels that it's all about service. "Our product is simple. If your double glazing is steamed up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 5 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a momentary perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done. We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole."

Cloudy2Clear service the Vale, Bridgend, RCT and Porthcawl areas and Phil is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. "The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated."

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Phil a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

The Power To Supply...

Vale Council creates 'Mecca for wildlife'

THE Vale Council is creating a new pond at Cosmeston Lakes, which the rangers hope will become a Mecca for all kinds of amphibian and reptile wildlife, including the Great Crested Newt.

Work on the new pond started earlier this year, with ARC's south Wales habitat creation officer Peter Hill on hand to oversee the excavation.

The pond will be completed in time to attract frogs, toads and newts during early spring when the creatures start to lay their spawn.

Cosmeston already has Great Crested Newts on site, and the new pond will help to strengthen those populations, preventing them from becoming isolated.

The Great Crested Newt is a threatened species in the UK and has been identified by the Government as a priority for conservation action under the UK Biodiversity Action Plan (UKBAP).

Cosmeston Lakes secured a grant from the Amphibian and Reptile Conservation (ARC) to excavate a new pond and an area of that will provide hibernacula (otherwise known as homes) to a whole host of amphibians.

A spokeswoman said: "if you're planning a trip to Cosmeston Lakes, take a moment to see how the new pond is progressing – it can be found on the left-hand side as you walk along the boardwalk leading from the car park to the medieval village."

Men who guarded the Wall

THE Berlin Wall and its destruction was the subject of a GEM report recently of a talk by Mrs Jeanne Harvey, at Barry Men's Forum.

Being a frequent visitor beyond the 'Iron Curtain' since the late 1960s, I too visited both east and west Berlin on a number of occasions.

On October 7, 1989, I and others attended a dinner in London with the ambassador to Britain of the GDR/DDR (German Democratic Republic – East Germany). This was only a few weeks before he lost his ambassadorial position, his job, and his country. It was possibly one of the most boring dinners I have attended; the 'entertainment' consisted of extolling the virtues of economic progress in the GDR!

I must take issue with one part of the article, however: those fleeing over the Wall, or under the wire, were not "killed by Soviet guards".

They were killed or injured by fellow East German border guards and, if captured, put into the 'tender care' of the Stasi.

The 'Soviets', ie the Russians, who were present in East Berlin, did not guard the wall; the East German security forces did that themselves.

Christopher Short, Barry.

VALE MP's VIEWPOINT

Are you aware of the threat to your local A&E services?

The Local Health Board is currently considering the future of the Accident & Emergency provision at the Princess of Wales Hospital in Bridgend.

Residents in the western Vale depend on the A&E services provided at the Bridgend hospital, as well as the intensive care and maternity services.

I've been contacted by many who are rightly concerned about how such essential care and treatment will be provided on a local basis, should the Health Board choose to close the units as part of their plans for healthcare provision in the future.

Constituents have expressed their very real worries about how the services currently provided at the Princess of Wales hospital could be downgraded.

The Princess of Wales, the Royal Glamorgan Hospital at Llantrisant and the Prince Charles Hospital in Merthyr are all in the running to be designated the regional centre. The two hospitals which fail will see services downgraded.

If the Princess of Wales does not become the regional centre, the current proposals have outlined that its A & E department will be downgraded to a minor injuries unit, the current doctor-led maternity unit will become a midwife-led unit and the children's ward will go – to be replaced by a paediatric assessment unit.

I cannot believe that if children, following assessment, need to be admitted, they will have to go to another hospital. This would be truly horrendous for the child or patient, during what would already be a very stressful time.

GEM readers will be aware that I have raised my concerns many times regarding the Welsh Government funding cuts of over half a billion pounds over the next three years in the Welsh NHS. In contrast, the UK Government is to grow its health spend in real terms over this parliamentary period.

From cancer care and treatment to missed ambulance waiting time targets, it's vital for the Welsh Government to support and invest in its NHS services.

It's ludicrous and frightening to think that mothers to be, heart attack and stroke victims and children will need to be ferried for many extra miles to Cardiff or Llantrisant, rather than the short distance to Bridgend.

The true cost of any reduction in service provision will be paid by the people of the Vale and Bridgend areas should the Princess of Wales departments be downgraded.

I will be arranging a community round-table and cross-party meeting in Llantwit Major to discuss the issues, raised by the proposals and to plan for responses to the public consultation on the Health Board's plans.

Please do get in contact with me at my constituency office or at alun.cairns.mp@parliament.uk if you'd like to become involved in the campaign to secure the future of the Princess of Wales Hospital in Bridgend.

The more people from the Vale that fight the proposals will ensure that the Health Board realise and continue to invest in the essential services provided at the PoW hospital.

As yet, there is no date confirmed for the publication of the south Wales programme proposals by the Abertawe Bro Morgannwg Health Board, other than it being noted as taking place in spring 2013.

Once published, there will be a period of public consultation, when it will be vital for supporters of the campaign to make their representations to the Health Board.

It's vital that as a community we are ready to help ensure that the residents and businesses of the western Vale can continue to receive excellent care and treatment locally.

I will be doing all I can to support the A&E, maternity and children's ward at the Princess of Wales Hospital.

Landmark year for our veteran community correspondent... THE GEM'S NANCY DAVIDGE OF LLANGAN - 90 NOT OUT!

LAST week, The GEM's community correspondent for Treoe, Llangan and St Mary Hill, Nancy Davidge, celebrated a personal milestone when she celebrated her 90th birthday.

Remarkably, Nancy has been with The GEM for almost 20 years, providing weekly news from her area for all that time - with the only interruptions for the occasional holiday. Indeed, she often sends in news from Llangan Primary School - the very school she attended when she was just 10 years old!

However, despite her affection for the Vale, Nancy has not always lived in the area. She was born in Trehafod in the Rhondda Valley, where her parents ran a fish and chip shop.

Mum did most of the work running the shop, as her father was a wheelwright but, even with two sources of income, life in the valleys in the 1920s, with the depression at its worst, was very tough.

Eventually, her father packed up the chip shop equipment and the family headed for London, looking for a better life there. However, life was no easier. The East End of London was not a great place to bring up a young child, and it was the time of 'pea souper' fogs, all due to the air pollution of the time.

Nancy's mother was pining for the countryside in the Vale and so the family came back, taking a smallholding in Llangan, and living in the house that she lives in to this day.

So, a 10-year-old Nancy started at Llangan school and she still pops in once a week to see how the children are doing.

She said: "It is like going home. The school has changed so much but it still has the same feeling."

Nancy was 16 when World War Two broke out and, as she was living in Cardiff, she joined the Civil Defence. In the evenings throughout the war, she was an Air Raid Patrol (ARP) warden.

During the day she went to college, and then started work in the Royal Ordnance Factory (ROF) in Llanishen. She also learned to drive, joined the Fire Service and found time to drive a van for Dewhursts the butchers.

You might think that all this pretty much filled her days but she managed one other small thing. She met and married her husband!

Christopher Davidge was serving in the Royal Artillery and the courtship was interrupted (frequently) by his training. As with many other young couples, a time came when they had a decision to make, as Chris was due to be posted overseas.

Nancy said: "A lot of couples decided to wait until after the war, but Chris called to say that he had a few days' embarkation leave. He asked me to marry him and I accepted!"

That triggered a mad two-and-a-half weeks getting ready. Some of the girls from Dewhursts wanted to be bridesmaids, so dresses had to be made and all the other arrangements were made.

The happy couple were married on a Saturday, had a one night honeymoon on the Sunday (in Chepstow) and Chris rejoined his regiment on the Wednesday.

He was to be away for three years and eight months.

A large contingent of Welsh soldiers were posted to India and Burma and many returned in terrible shape after being captured by the Japanese.

Chris escaped capture by the skin of his teeth. His unit was surrounded but, at the last minute, they were rescued by an amoured division.

In one of those bizarre coincidences that seem to happen in wartime, he discovered after the war that his brother, George, was in the leading tank of that rescuing division!

Chris came home in 1945, but he did not get off scot free. His time in the tropics had left him with malaria, and Nancy had to watch him suffer through at least three harrowing attacks until he eventually recovered.

When that recovery was complete, it was time to earn a living in post-war Britain, and Chris became a railway fitter. Nancy followed him to London and eventually, they were able to buy their first home - in Stratford, where the London 2012 Olympic Stadium was built.

Nancy said: "I remember that home cost £2,200 and similar homes in that area of London are now almost £300,000!"

They had a daughter, Gaye, and when they bought her a poodle, it started Nancy on her own career. She said: "We took Gaye's poodle to shows and, before long, other dog owners were asking me to groom their dogs."

Nancy got busier, and she decided to open up in business and it grew until she had 400 dogs on her books and was employing three girls. When the family decided to return to the Vale, in 1978, she spent a number of years running it from a distance, until she eventually sold the business. She still loves animals and has three cats and two dogs.

On the family side, she has one daughter, one grandson and three great grandchildren. Nancy said: "I have had a good life and have done many things that I have always wanted to. When I was little, I dreamt of marrying a cowboy, and I did travel all the way to the Rockies and ride a white horse on a cowboy ranch!"

Later in life, she travelled across Canada by bus, and on another occasion saw the sights of New York - heading off to Times Square in the days when it was a den of iniquity, and paying a visit to the United Nations.

More recently, she was still adventurous enough to head off to Moscow and see the sights there.

At home, she has seen many changes in the Vale. In her own village of Llangan, many of the old cottages have gone, and new houses have been built, but it still retains a village feel - with the community spirit that follows.

And wherever you have a community, it's great to have a community correspondent!

PHILIP IRWIN

Plaid tax rate move defeated

A Plaid Cymru motion to set a council tax rate of three per cent, in line with inflation and the Welsh average, was voted down when the Vale Council set their precept last week.

Plaid Cymru group leader Chris Franks said: "Where we run the council in Dinas Powys we have organised our finances so that we have not had to increase council tax this year. In contrast, Vale residents have a 4.8 per cent rise from the Vale of Glamorgan Council and a 7 per cent police precept rise from Labour's Police and Crime Commissioner."

HOMES in Bridgend and the Vale of Glamorgan are to benefit from over £1million pounds of household energy efficiency grants from the Welsh Government – as part of a £4.4m scheme announced by Environment Minister John Griffiths AM.

Welsh Government funding of £1,117,628 will “make over 180 homes in Bridgend and the Vale warmer and better to live in”. Eight other councils across Wales are also receiving funding.

Work has already begun on some schemes and all improvements are expected to have been made by the end of June.

Each project varies but examples of work include installing external wall insulation and energy efficient boilers.

The Minister said: “A continuing upward trend in fuel prices means we must do all we can to ensure that Welsh homes are fit for the future.”

“The UK Government’s welfare reforms will have a huge and damaging effect on Wales, hitting the most vulnerable in our communities through to low-middle income families.”

“We are committed to taking action that makes a real, sustainable difference to people across Wales. I am pleased that ten councils applied for funding and are now able to work with local communities to ensure homes are more comfortable and more affordable to heat.”

“Our successful Arbed scheme is an example of sustainability in action – it brings social benefits, it supports the economy and it protects our environment.”

“All projects receiving funding today will use Welsh-based installers or those that have offices here.”

The Welsh Government launched its Arbed scheme three years ago, to make homes more energy efficient. Since then, it says, more than £74m has been spent on measures to improve the energy efficiency of 8,500 homes in some of Wales’ most deprived areas.

Vale tops the 'home improvements' league

ACCORDING to the latest research into planning applications in Wales by expert provider of market intelligence for the built environment, Barbour ABI, the Vale leads the top 10 home improvement districts.

Barbour ABI conducted an analysis across Wales, the English regions and Scotland.

The Vale came closest to the average across Great Britain of 1.64 applications for every 100 private homes with the council receiving an average of 1.47.

It is regarded as a wealthy area in Wales with plenty to attract tourists so it is likely to see relatively more investment in home improvement.

Intriguingly, Blaenau Gwent, one of the poorer districts, jumped up to second in the Welsh league of home improvement areas in 2012.

Much of this increase appears to have been down to the energy saving initiatives leading to an increase in such improvements as external wall insulation.

The Vale has led the home improvements 'Welsh League' for three years now.

Vale MP hits out over latest ambulance response times

VALE MP Alun Cairns has reacted with "anger and disappointment" - after only 61 per cent of urgent (category A) ambulance calls from the Vale arrived at their destination within the target eight-minute time in January, according to the latest data published.

Mr Cairns has called on the Welsh Health Minister and Welsh Government to respond. Out of 587 calls made to the Ambulance service, only 353 arrived within the designated time-frame. The target time is 65 per cent in Wales, although there is an expectation that 75 per cent should be met in England.

The Welsh Government's statistics service highlights snow as a factor during January. The last time the 65 per cent category A target was met was in May last year.

Mr Cairns said: "The Vale is missing out again. I fear particularly for areas like Llantwit and the villages around the western parts of the county.

"The number of urgent 999 calls answered by an ambulance within the target time dipped again during January. I have called for the Welsh Government to act on this matter many times over the last two years.

"It is vital that we gain assurance from the Minister that the review of the Welsh Ambulance Service NHS Trust will deliver improved response times for our community.

"Despite the best efforts of dedicated ambulance staff, the service is not delivering the standard of service that patients expect and deserve.

"One constituent in the Vale who was suffering from breathing problems waited over an hour for an ambulance to arrive after an initial 999 call (identified as 'category A'). Another was a stroke victim, and a further patient was suffering from chest pains - all waited over an hour. The target time is eight minutes.

"Hardworking paramedics need to be backed up by fresh investment in response vehicles and smoother transition arrangements at hospitals to prevent ambulances being blocked up waiting to provide patients.

"I fear that such investment may be difficult, due to cuts to the Welsh NHS, which is the only part of the NHS that is receiving a budget reduction."

A wee bit of help from the Vale Mayor

Vale Mayor, Coun Eric Hacker, and Rowan Hughes, with a photo of the toilet in Burundi.

IN 2009, two international charities, Cord and Tearfund, launched a Toilet Twinning project to provide toilets to villages in Burundi and Cambodia.

The charities wished to highlight the need for safer sanitation in the world's poorest countries.

Every day 2.6 billion people have nowhere safe, private or hygienic to go to the toilet.

The Mayor of the Vale, Coun Eric Hacker, was approached by Rowan Hughes, the council's environmental health officer, to support this initiative and he agreed to twin the Town Hall with a toilet in Burundi.

Rowan explained: "Having seen some of the facilities in Rwanda,

I am aware of how we take good sanitation for granted and as an environmental health officer, wanted to support this project.

"I am delighted the Mayor has agreed to help and I am hoping to encourage staff in the Civic Office to follow suit and twin a toilet in the Civic Office."

Coun Hacker said: "In rural Burundi, less than half the population has access to a loo and for just £60 we have been able to help the people in Giharo, Burundi to have access to safe sanitation."

Since 2009, more than 1,600 latrines have been built in Burundi, providing safe loos for nearly 10,000 people.

To find out more about toilet twinning, go to www.toilettwinning.org.

Penarth Computer Club news PASSING THE ATTITUDE TEST

DO you have attitude? Not the in your face, aggressive kind, but the right approach to life's challenges? It is said that everyone hates change; it can certainly be a bit of a pain, but it depends on your attitude towards it.

Two instances spring to mind. Whenever a client brought to one of my bosses a job that involved applying an expertise we didn't have, he didn't turn it away, he grasped it as an opportunity to learn something new, and we made the effort, and we expanded the range of services the firm could provide.

I learnt from another source that, when faced with what most people would consider a problem, life is easier if one treated it as an inconvenience and adjusted ones mindset to suit.

Both these ideas have changed as taking place in so many aspects of life - especially in the digital worlds of computing and communications.

Do we welcome the chance to learn new skills, or ignore the developments and hope that they pass us by?

The answer might depend on the perceived effort required to obtain a satisfactory reward (i.e. skill). The snag with this line of thinking is a tendency to exaggerate the effort and diminish the value of a reward that has yet to be experienced. It might be the other way around.

Familiarising yourself with a new machine is usually rewarding because the new machine is quicker and more powerful. Learning your way around a new operating system and new applications will take longer for the benefits to become obvious.

We are used to reminding users that the first things they learn are probably not the best way to do things and to seek out more options to find more efficient methods. It's the right attitude.

Computer manufacturers are in competition and need to produce improvements to stay in business. They need to convince customers that new products are better. To get a more detached view it is worth reading independent reviews and customers' comments.

The sheer numbers of users and the pace of development means that there will be many users taking the new stuff on board because their old kit simply has to be replaced.

The press will quickly be reporting general impressions and you can take advantage of users' experiences.

Do not fear the new advances, but pay attention to the benefits that will come your way.

You might not need more than you have, but if your machine is getting too old or the applications are no longer supported you will be happier if you welcome the improvements, even at the cost of having to work harder for a while.

When all is said and done, think about your attitude and act accordingly.

The next meeting is on Tuesday, March 26 at All Saints Lesser Hall, Victoria Square, Penarth, 7.30 pm. Kevin S will be showing how to use Powerpoint. See our website at penarth-computerclub.co.uk.

EGG HEAD!

On Friday, while the pupils of Y Bont Faen Primary were happily celebrating World Book Day, a strange object appeared within the grounds... a rather large egg!

Everyone came to look at the egg and tried hard to deduce what type of creature could have laid the egg.

There were some clues... the egg was laid in a rather well-built nest and there was a glittery trail of prints leading from the egg to the far off reaches of the school grounds.

What could it be? The pupils spent the day creating stories, news reports, documentaries and animations based on the egg's sudden appearance - with some Year 6 investigators trying to expose the 'truth' on camera, in a very Jeremy Paxman-esque style, that the egg was placed there by one of the staff - namely, Mr Griffiths!

The whole school was buzzing with the possibilities of the mysterious egg - so much so, that the work will continue on this mystery for the next few weeks.

The day formed part of a wider literacy drive, which Y Bont Faen has been working on for over a year with Big Writing and the new National Framework for Literacy.

The pupils' work will be available online shortly

YOU CAN'T GET MUCH LOWER THAN THIS..!

THE speaker at the Barry Men's Forum meeting last week was Dr Edward Hellewell, who has played in most of the great British orchestras during his 60 years.

He detailed how his parents had given him a viola for his seventh birthday, which was a disappointment to him as he was hoping for a Hornby train set!

Nevertheless, four years later he gave his first concert in south Yorkshire, and in fact became a professional musician at that point, as he was paid the handsome sum of £1.

At the age of 13, he joined the local colliery band and transferred to the trombone, before joining the Skyliners Dance Band. When he went to university he joined the orchestra, playing the trombone, before being persuaded to change to the largest of the stringed instruments, the double bass.

Dr Hellewell had brought along to the Forum his new three quarter size double bass, which even so still weighed 28lbs, and he had named it 'Wilf'. He had recently had made in Austria a copy of an 18th century instrument from Maple and Spruce, and it was valued at £20,000.

He explained it was in need of 'playing in', and he hoped the Forum members would not be too critical of the tone of the new instrument, whose tone will improve with age.

He then went on to demonstrate a number of orchestral pieces where the double bass is the foremost instrument. He completed his interesting talk and performances with Saints Saens' 'The Elephant' from 'The Carnival of the Animals'.

New members Nigel Vick and Martin Riggott were welcomed by the chairman. All are welcome to come along to The Barry Men's Forum which meet at Windsor Road Church Hall every Thursday morning at 10.15am.

On March 21, the speaker will be Rosemary Scadden whose talk is entitled 'I was Harry Secombe's Stand-in.' For further information contact the chairman, Peter Westcott, on 02920 594881. PMW

What do you think of 20mph speed limit?

RESIDENTS in the Vale are to be asked for their views on 20mph zones for Penarth and Llandough.

The consultation opens on March 18 in the wake of a report presented at a Vale Council cabinet meeting in Penarth on January 21, which raised the possibility of creating 20mph zones in Penarth and Llandough.

Cabinet member for regeneration, innovation, planning and transportation, Coun Lis Burnett, said: "The idea was initially raised by residents in both Penarth and Llandough and so we want to understand local people's thoughts about possible 20mph zones in Penarth and Llandough."

"The consultation will be open to all residents and will feel more like a conversation in which we will only seek to find out if residents generally welcome the idea and whether there is support for an in-depth investigation into the viability of a 20mph zone or zones."

"Detail such as where any zones might begin and end, how they would be implemented and so forth, would only be looked at if residents tell us that's what they want, and would of course require careful planning and further consultation."

What price financial prudence?

WE continually hear how hard up the Vale is for finances and that Council Tax will need to rise above the inflation rate or critical services will have to be cut.

Why then are large amounts of money being spent fussing with existing footpaths at many of our road junctions, typically the traffic lights at Llanmaes Road junction, Llantwit Major.

To cap it all, some of the work is being accomplished on a Sunday, presumably on premium rate?

Surely the 'white elephant' cycle track along Port Road, Barry that no-one seems to use should have been less on enough?

What happened to simple prudence? Marc White Llanmaes

Daffs and dancing on St David's Day

BUNCHES of daffodils gave the Community Hall a festive air as Rhose WI president Jenny Reed welcomed members to a St David's Day celebration.

Members were reminded of a number of forthcoming events, including the spring council meeting at Porthcawl on April 29. They also learned that two members were in hospital and visits were arranged.

Nominations for the committee were asked for prior to the AGM in May. After business was concluded, the guest for the evening was welcomed; Eleanor Macnamara, a fellow member from St Athan WI, who introduced everyone to the delights of Welsh folk dancing.

A great time ensued, with members performing with enthusiasm, and there was much hilarity as the sets tried to keep time and remember the steps!

Our teacher was very patient and everyone enjoyed the experience. During a break, when Welsh cakes and bara brith were served, a booklet containing the entries for the annual limerick competition was circulated.

Afterwards, a further dance was attempted and then Eleanor entertained the gathering with extracts from Dylan Thomas' 'Under Milk Wood'.

Eileen Eeles thanked Eleanor for an entertaining evening. Finally, the winners of the competition and the raffle were announced with Barbara Goodway winning the former, with her photograph depicting 'Welsh Life'. The raffle was won by Beryl Lang.

The next meeting will take place on April 4 at 7.30pm in the Community Hall, Stewart Road, when members will model fashions supplied by Samantha B of Ewenny. New members and visitors will be very welcome.

Forthcoming events: March 2 at 6pm - dinner at The Six Bells, Penmark; March 22 at 2pm - skittles at Rhose Social Club and afterwards tea and cake at Coffee Time; every Tuesday at 11am, coffee and chat.

Transport police chief for Wales

BRITISH Transport Police (BTP) has announced the appointment of a Superintendent for the Welsh sector, Andy Morgan, who spent 29 years with South Wales Police, in a variety of roles, most recently as Chief Inspector of Operations for the Bridgend borough.

Wales and Western Area Commander, Chief Superintendent Peter Davies, said: "Andy was very highly thought of at South Wales Police and his promotion to Superintendent with BTP will enhance and improve our service delivery throughout Wales."

Mr Morgan, aged 47, said he was excited about his new role and was looking forward to further strengthening BTP's role within UK policing. He describes himself as "an operational officer through and through", and lives in Porthcawl with his wife and 12-year-old daughter.

A proud Welsh speaker, he was educated at Ysgol Gyfun Llanhari. While acknowledging the differences between the four Welsh police forces and BTP, Mr Morgan was also keen to point out the key aims and objectives remain the same.

"I've moved from a localised police service in south Wales, dictated day-to-day by defined geographical boundaries, to a nationwide force that operates across borders," he added.

"At the end of the day, however, we all form part of a UK police service."

Out and About with The GEM

TRIP TO OZ IS A MAGICAL EXPERIENCE

by GARETH JAMIESON
Follow Screen
Talk on Twitter -
@GEMScreenTalk

YOU would have to be pretty hard-hearted not to love the wonderful Wizard of Oz.

Even at 74 years of age, the film is a truly mesmerising example of cinema, and has rightly stood the test of time. So it would take a brave filmmaker to approach that world again – but Sam Raimi is one such director, handling helming duties on a prequel of sorts, Oz The Great and Powerful.

James Franco plays Oscar, a Kansas stage magician who finds himself blown away in a hot air balloon by a hurricane to the land of Oz.

When he gets there, he finds himself lauded as the great magician who has come to save the people of Oz, something complicated by three witches, Theodora (Mila Kunis), Evanora (Rachel Weisz) and Glinda (Michelle Williams) who all have their own motives with Oscar...

It's difficult enough to approach a sequel or prequel to a film, without having the pressures of trying to match something as beloved as The Wizard of Oz;

1985's Return To Oz was a poor film that looked even worse when compared with the 1939 classic – so there must have been plenty of chutzpah in Sam Raimi's decision to dig into the origins of the titular wizard in Oz The Great and Powerful.

Thankfully, for both Raimi and the multitude of fans of The Wizard of Oz (this writer among them), the film is wonderfully entertaining, respectful of the original film, but one that works on its own terms and plays out with a joyous twinkle.

Raimi has always been a director not afraid to let the camera work its magic (just see his work on the original Evil Dead or, on a bigger budget, the transformation of Doctor Octopus in Spiderman 2), and coupled with a world as vivid as Oz and 3D technology, he creates a film visually gorgeous and breathtaking, looking absolutely glorious.

As Life of Pi and Avatar showed, the more vividly colourful a film, the better the end result with 3D, and the same rule applies here, the film leaping off the screen in places – but done with subtlety and style, the film immersive without feeling too gimmicky.

There are plenty of nods to the 1939 film contained within, some all too apparent and others little kernels that are for the die-hards – but all lend a magical atmosphere in keeping with The Wizard..., the care and reverence all pervading and more than welcome.

The performances by the cast are also a cut above the usual family fare, with James Franco shining in the lead role.

Certainly his character and his arc are well-worn, but Franco, who is on an impressive run of form of late, gives Oscar plenty of life, ably supported by Zach Braff, pulling double-duty as Oscar's assistant and an unbelievably cute CGI monkey with the best lines, the pair giving the film a great energy.

The witches bring their usual sheen of class, Weisz relishing playing the mischievous Evanora and Williams giving the angelic Glinda a glint of mischief; Mila Kunis has arguably the most weight to carry, but her performance is just as enjoyable as the others, the film well-acted across the board.

While the script struggles to match the inventiveness of Raimi's direction, feeling a little too predictable and playing a little too broadly at times, it doesn't distract from how enjoyable a piece it is, and it should also be noted that it has to work within the confines of The Wizard... due to its nature.

All in all, however, Oz The Great and Powerful makes for a great companion piece and other trips to Oz would be a more than welcome experience if Raimi and Co. stay on board.

VERDICT - Oz The Great and Powerful is well-titled, a superb film that is a magical cinematic experience. Undemanding but faithful to the 1939 film, and with superb direction from Sam Raimi and strong turns, this is one trip well worth taking. Recommended.

Vale Brass Band springs into 2013!

ON March 4, the Vale of Glamorgan Brass Band under Dave Short, started their 2013 season with a spring concert at the Dinas Powys Parish Hall.

The audience, which included Coun Jeff James (band president) received the concert well.

It was supported by the Barry Choral Society (under Emma Arscott) and the Vale training band (Chris Murray).

The band played a selection of pieces, including 'Hey Jude', featuring the horn section. Other soloists were Alex Fender (bagpipes) Dave Weton (saxophone) and Tony Williams (euphonium).

The items from the choir were varied and included 'Irish Blessing'. The playing of the training band showed it will be in good hands in the future. It has a busy year planned with concerts and competitions. AW

New choir's first concerts

LAST Saturday and Sunday, Penarth's new ladies' choir, Allegro, under musical director Ray Dibble, performed their first two concerts.

A spokesman said: "What an exciting two evenings this proved to be, with superb vocal arrangements covering a range of music from 'You Raise Me Up' to 'If I Loved You' from Carousel.

"The audiences loved every minute, with Mark Thompson introducing the items in his usual fun-filled delivery.

"The choir was joined by opera singer, Luther Vaughan, who gave a mix of operatic favourites and songs from Les Miserables. In contrast 12-year-old Jack Sullivan, who is already under theatrical management, thrilled with 'Somewhere Over The Rainbow' and 'Where Is Love' from Oliver.

"The programme included a selection of Welsh favourites, with a touch of Ivor Novello sung superbly by Catherine Howard, and a touch of Porgy and Bess from Jenny Harvey, both members of the choir.

"We look forward to more evenings like this with Allegro (Penarth Voices In Harmony)."

For more information on joining the choir, telephone 029 20217681.

Schools compete to be Youth Speaks champions

The intermediate contestants.

The senior contestants.

IN a contest organised by Rotary, 51 contestants from 15 schools across south Wales came together on March 8 to fight out the title for Youth Speaks Champions, south Wales.

The venue was Barry and Vale College and the competition was held in two age groups, with intermediates representing those aged 11 to 14, and seniors 15 to 17. In a tightly-fought contest with teams of chairman, speaker, and proposer of the vote of thanks, St John Lloyd Catholic Comprehensive School in Llanelli were deemed the winners.

But the team of Nia Fenn, Lois Aled, and Caleb Darwin of Ysgol Gyfun Bro Morgannwg in Barry were named the runners-up. In addition, Lois Aled was deemed best speaker.

In the seniors, the winning team was Aimee Delaney, Lissie Wallington, and Sarah Jayne Griffiths of Bryn Hafren Comprehensive School in Barry and go through to the next round, to be held on April 13.

District governor of Rotary for south Wales, Bob Lewis, complimented the teams on some outstanding performances. He said that each student had done extremely well in reaching this, the third round of the competition, and should feel extremely proud of themselves.

£1,500 Rotary gift for brain injury centre

ON February 23, the president of the Rotary Club of Dinas Powys, Gerard Crosby and fellow Rotarian, Neil Gaskell, visited Headway Cardiff's Day Centre – to present them with a cheque for £1,500.

Gerard had nominated Headway Cardiff as his charity of the year, in recognition of the work they do with his brother, Kevin, who sustained a brain injury following a haemorrhage nearly three years ago.

Gerard said: "Kevin is no longer able to work, but needs to be challenged and stimulated in an environment that understands the subtle cognitive and emotional difficulties that he now experiences."

"His Friday at Headway is central to his week, and we have seen some of the old Kevin return since he has been attending.

"It also means that he has support from others who really understand what he has, and is going through, which is important when life changes so dramatically."

Headway Cardiff has provided support to hundreds of people with a brain injury each year for over 30 years – but still there is a lack of services for survivors and their families.

Julie Smith, general manager of Headway Cardiff, said: "Whilst surgical and medical interventions continue to improve, and the numbers of people surviving injuries each year increases, the services that help people achieve the highest level of independence and the best quality of life possible are underfunded or, in worst cases, ignored."

Getting prepared for the spring at Fonmon Apiary

SPRING is definitely trying to put in an appearance; however, the cold easterly winds are going to hold back any activity so far as the bees are concerned.

The lengthening daylight hours are certainly stimulating the colonies but, until the temperatures show a decided rise not much exterior activity will be on show.

At present my main concern is the food stores, or as the case may be, the lack of them. The bees are definitely active within the hives and, of course, this activity means that energy is required.

To provide the energy, the bees depend on the food stores within the hive and as they diminish, the bees could very easily starve. It is up to the beekeeper to prevent this from occurring.

How can this be done? My approach is to go to the rear of the hive and slip my fingers underneath the base and by gently raising it whilst applying a forward tipping motion, this action will provide me with a very rough indication as to the hive's total contents ie bees and stores.

Some hives feel decidedly lighter than others and over the years this method has enabled me to plan a course of action. You can take the roof off if you desire, as roofs can add considerably to the weight. In the event that I do remove a roof, I do not disturb the crown board at all.

At present, some of the colonies are having their stores supplemented by me as a result of my rudimentary weighing exercise, using either ready rolled strips of icing sugar or a superior product called Ambrosia Sugar Dough, both of these products will provide the bees with a ready to eat energy source and help to stave off starvation.

To add this supplementary food, I need to remove the roof and the crown board, being as gentle as I can so that I do not cause any undue disturbance. I then lay strips of said feed directly onto the frames and reassemble the hive.

Several hives have a tray beneath the open mesh floor. When I withdraw a tray, the debris pattern, ie straight lines of wax cappings on the floor of the tray, indicate where the bees are in the hive – and, of course, informs me that they are uncapping and consuming previously stored nectar or the liquid sugar I may have fed to them in the previous autumn. With the debris will be dead Varroa mites; all of this debris I remove and put it into marked containers for closer inspection and the counting of the dead mites.

This counting of mites is not a legal requirement, but it does give me an indication as to the level of infestation the bees are confronted with. The control of the Varroa mite has to be a prime function of every beekeeper.

Until better conditions prevail, I shall carry on preparing and cleaning as much equipment as I can, ready to meet the requirements of each of the colonies that are in my care.

Should fair weather be our lot, the bees will step up their activity and will not wait for me at all.

Take heed of the Scouts' motto – 'BE PREPARED!'

'Diving board rock' provides photo opportunity for the Vale Ramblers

A GROUP of 14 walkers set out from Llanfrynach, near Brecon, for a strenuous 10 mile, strenuous walk up onto Bwlch y Ddwyllt – and around the rim of the huge Cwm Oergwm to Fan-y-Big.

The weather was not very kind. Temperatures had been very low overnight and the ground was frozen solid.

The cloud was down and so none of the magnificent views were seen as we made our way up.

We had two new walkers with us, but both proved to be well 'up to the job'.

We found a sheltered spot for lunch and sat on the ice-encrusted ground, occasionally catching a glimpse of the sun, struggling to make its way through the cloud.

As we reached Fan-y-Big the visibility suddenly improved and Cribyn appeared to the west.

A pair of brave young girls took turns posing for photos, perched on the 'diving board' rock which juts frighteningly out over the sheer drop.

Walkers make their way through the gloom.

They were also rather foolhardy as they had walked up without a map and realised that, in following us, they were coming down on the northern flank with about six miles extra to get back to their car at Talybont.

This was solved by the offer of a lift from one of our group.

With excellent views now developing around us perhaps we had forgotten to watch the slippery ground, which caught

Gwendolyn unawares and resulted in a broken ankle.

The group rallied round. Most of us made our way quickly back to fetch a car, leaving two capable chaps to look after poor Gwendolyn.

Fortunately, a friendly farmer came along with a quad bike and ferried her down to the road, where she did not have long to wait.

Unfortunately the Swan in Llanfrynach had just closed when we got there, but we had enjoyed an exhilarating day and again appreciated the need to respect the mountains.

It's Wales V England (for Bowel Cancer UK) before Grand Slam decider!

Alun Cairns MP and Andrew RT Davies AM will be on opposing sides when the Welsh Assembly rugby team takes on the Commons and Lords this Saturday. They are pictured with a representative of Bowel Cancer UK, the charity benefiting from the match.

THE charity, Bowel Cancer UK, will be the winner when a National Assembly for Wales' team takes on the Commons and Lords for the annual Parliamentary Cup this Saturday.

The match takes place at Cardiff Quins RFC, Forest Farm Road, Whitchurch, at 11 am. Entry is free of charge, with donations going to the charity.

Normally, Conservatives Andrew RT Davies AM and Alun Cairns MP are on the same side, but this time they are in opposition.

Andrew RT Davies told The GEM: "Since our first match, the Assembly team have raised well over £10,000 for Bowel Cancer UK, so I would urge anyone who can, to come along and support this fundraising effort on Saturday."

Mr Davies added that he hoped the Welsh Assembly would triumph as a curtain-raiser to Wales prize the Six Nations' Championship from England at the Millennium Stadium in the afternoon.

CRC funding helps to boost projects across the rural Vale

FROM projects that aim to attract visitors to the Vale, to schemes that enhance services for local communities, Creative Rural Communities (CRC), the Vale Council's rural regeneration initiative, is offering a variety of grants to communities and rural businesses.

Over the past 12 months, Creative Rural Communities, supported by the Rural Partnership, has invested £1,075,000 in supporting 57 innovative projects and ideas which have improved the long term social and economic wellbeing of the rural Vale.

It has been stated that one of the keys to success of Creative Rural Communities is that it is administered locally by the Vale Council, but led by a multi-sector partnership where local people are able to steer the direction of funding and strategy to fit the needs of the rural Vale.

Phil Chappell, of Creative Rural Communities, explained: "The range of projects that have previously received funding from Creative Rural Communities just highlights the wealth and diversity of what the rural Vale has to offer.

"Building on the success of 2012, we are currently awarding funding to support a range of diverse projects from community groups wishing to grow their own food under our 'Community Foodie' programme, to new and existing initiatives that encourage tourism in the Vale.

"We also have grants of up to £40,000 available to support new footpaths to link villages, people and places, as well as grants of up to £40,000 available to support the enhancement of existing services to rural pubs, shops and community venues. "Funding to date has made a considerable difference to both services and amenities for local residents and potential tourists. "We look forward to receiving applications for a range of new and exciting projects and ideas under our various funding programmes."

Vale residents, groups and businesses can find out more about funding opportunities by visiting the Creative Rural Communities team at Old Hall, Cowbridge High Street or by calling 01446 704754, or emailing create@valeofglamorgan.gov.uk.

Rural pub sees advantage in providing extra service

A father and son from Barry have converted a local pub in picturesque Llanblethian, near Cowbridge, to include a new convenience-store service for the community with the help of a grant from Creative Rural Communities (CRC).

While an increasing number of local pubs are being bought out by major supermarket branches, the Cross Inn has been given a new lease of life thanks to funding from CRC, the Vale Council's rural regeneration initiative, and advice and support from 'Pub is The Hub', the rural pubs organisation.

CRC's Rural Hubs grant scheme aims to diversify existing services, such as local pubs and community spaces, in order to offer new and improved services, as well as creating and securing a future for vibrant community hubs.

Since 2001, Pub is The Hub has encouraged local communities, licensees and pub owners to work in partnership to support, retain and locate local services, wherever possible, within the one place that is accessible, open and welcoming; the local pub.

The grant awarded to the Cross Inn, the first pub in the rural Vale to benefit from a CRC Rural Hubs grant, has enabled Arthur O'Leary and his son, Liam, to carry out the necessary renovations to launch the convenience-store service, including the construction of an oak cabinet, refrigeration, lighting and new signage to promote the new facility to locals and visitors.

The new service will enable customers to purchase home-made produce directly from the kitchen at Cross Inn, as well as other produce supplied from neighbouring farms and local providers. The pub will also stock a range of everyday essentials including milk, bread and sugar.

After 30 years serving as a landlord in a public house in Barry, Arthur O'Leary saw an opportunity to expand the existing facilities at Cross Inn in Llanblethian, which include a bar and restaurant, and increase what's on offer for the local community.

He said: "Having worked in the industry for a number of years, Liam and I recognised the increasing demand for services which make life easier for members of the community. By creating a convenience-store service at Cross Inn, we hope to attract villagers in to pick up those everyday items that they need as well as encouraging them to stop for a drink or something to eat."

Porthcawl regeneration: Council 'reg-negotiating' owners' agreement

BRIDGEND County Borough Council has confirmed that it is re-negotiating the owners' agreement with the private owners of land needed for Porthcawl regeneration.

Regional AM Byron Davies submitted a Freedom of Information request to BCBC about what was happening to the agreement in the wake of the decision by Tesco to withdraw from the project.

The council signed an owners' agreement with the two Evans families in 2011, which set out what each party could expect to receive from the sale of land for the regeneration scheme which included a new supermarket and flats at Salt Lake and houses at Sandy Bay.

Under the terms of that agreement, the Evans were due to get a total of £15-£5m for phase 1, which is Salt Lake, and £10m for Sandy Bay.

Prices were based on land valuations carried out in 2007, before the credit crunch, and the council was warned by independent surveyors before it signed the agreement that it could take up to 20 years for land values to rise back to 2007 levels. The duration of the agreement was 20 years.

In their response to Mr Davies, the council said that the owners' agreement is being renegotiated as a result of the council's decision to adopt a different marketing strategy for the regeneration project.

The council went on: "Naturally, utilisation of a different marketing strategy will lead to different amounts of money being received at different times. Accordingly, until the plots of land are exposed to the market, it will not be known what money is being received."

"Nevertheless, the valuation principles for the land will remain the same."

The council also failed to rule out any involvement by Tesco in a future project, but agreed that it was uncertain at present how much money would be stipulated for the other owners.

Mr Davies, Welsh Conservative regional AM for south Wales west, said that his only concern was to ensure that the council taxpayers of Bridgend received a fair return on the land that the council was putting into the project: "With the withdrawal of Tesco from the project, although the council seems to be saying that the door is still open for them, there is a need to make sure that council taxpayers are not short-changed as a result of an agreement which was based on land values from the boom times of six years ago."

"My other concern is that we are unlikely to know whether the council has succeeded in getting a good deal for taxpayers. They kept all the previous figures a secret. It was the press that revealed what had been agreed."

"It is my fear that the council will again cite commercial confidentiality as a reason for not disclosing what returns the council taxpayer will get from any new scheme that takes place."

"In my view, that is indefensible. We are talking here of publicly owned assets and the public of Porthcawl in particular has a right to know what they are being sold for. Otherwise, how can people judge if the council has acted properly and in their best interests?"

"When the time comes, I will be pressing for this figure to be disclosed."

WATERWHEEL MAY PROVIDE ANOTHER FIRST FOR CHURCH

REPORT by TIM CHAPMAN

A waterwheel may be installed in the stream outside the historic church of St Illtyd's if a new scheme gets the go-ahead.

The aim is to produce electricity for the church's heating and lighting.

Steve George, who lives in Llantwit Major and is behind the initiative, explained: "The local church council has given permission to look into the idea before permission is sought from the planning authority, CADW, the Environment Agency, Health and Safety and local town planning."

Mr George said that although there were periods when there would not be enough water to drive the wheel, the productive periods would far outweigh any fallow periods.

"The stream rarely dries up, but even if it did for one month, it will still produce electricity for 11 months of the year."

"St Illtyd's Church is the oldest seat of learning in the United Kingdom – perhaps it could be the first to be powered by water."

"The church is closed during the night, and therefore the electricity produced during this time could be sold to the National Grid."

The waterwheel would power a generator through a gear box.

Mr George accepts that a number of obstacles have to be overcome and appealed to people who may have specialist knowledge in waterwheels and electrical generation.

"The design of the waterwheel, technical problems, electricity cables, water flow rate, are all problems that need expertise provided on."

"If anyone has expertise and is willing to provide assistance in a voluntary capacity, please contact me on 07890 326888."

If Mr George gets the help he needs, he plans to form a committee to take the idea forward.

St Illtyd's Church which one day may have its electricity provided by a waterwheel.

WICK Chapel held a Mothering Sunday service on March 10, remembering all members of the chapel and mothers.

WICK Horticultural Society held their AGM in the village hall on March 8 and to make arrangements for the coming season.

THE collection of green garden waste bags will now commence from March 22 and then on alternate weeks to the black bags.

OGMORE Retired Residents held their meeting at All Saints, Southerndown, on March 7, when the speaker was Linda Feagan, of the Bridgend Dogs Trust, who brought along her own rescue dog, Ruby – a three-year-old King Charles spaniel.

The retired residents will be holding their AGM on March 21 at All Saints, Southerndown, at 2pm. Please make every effort to attend.

THE village market was held last Saturday at the church hall, with extra stalls. The ladies were kept busy making up bunches of daffodils, courtesy of Slade Southerndown, ready for the church Mothering Sunday service.

AT Mothering Sunday lunches in the Fox and Hounds, St Brides Major, each mother was presented with a red or yellow rose.

WELSH THEME IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY AT ALL SAINTS SCHOOL!

ST DAVID'S Day at All Saints Church in Wales Primary School, Barry, was a day of celebration and fun, when everyone dressed in Welsh-themed costumes and there were many colourful and imaginative entries.

The eisteddfod began with the churning of the Bard, when Max Blakeley, year-6, was chosen for his fantastic poem, 'The Enforcer,' which ended with a clever twist.

There was a demonstration of country dancing, class recitations and singing, followed by much excitement as the many competition results were announced.

Headteacher Richard Ware congratulated everyone on the high standard of entries, which made the judging very difficult.

He also thanked Welsh co-ordinator, Mrs Evans, and everyone who helped to make the day a superb celebration of Welsh culture and heritage. LM

'Parkrun' comes to Porthcawl

OVER the past few months local sports clubs in Bridgend County have been working with Bridgend County Borough Council and other parties to bring a 'Parkrun' scheme to the area; and through discussion Porthcawl seafront was centred upon for its scenic beauty, car parking infrastructure and café culture.

From April at 9am every Saturday morning, a 5km run will be organised from the lower promenade in front of the Grand Pavilion, on an 'out and back' course to Rest Bay and back, along the coastal pathway.

Parkrun is a free weekly 5km (3 miles) timed run, which is open to everyone, and easy to take part in.

It is not a race but an opportunity for young and old, of every ability to enjoy a low key social activity where you can enjoy the natural surroundings, while benefitting your health and fitness, and gauging your weekly performance online.

Registration is undertaken once, and entry is free, and online via www.parkrun.org.uk up until the night before your first run. You will be allocated a bar code which is your ID; which you print out and bring to the race and produce on the finish line and we do the rest.

There is a briefing to runners in the minutes before each run at the event HQ the white Watch Tower, near the pier, and all the results are uploaded onto the Porthcawl Parkrun website and participants can also keep informed on the event's Facebook page.

In addition to participating, the organisers are keen to encourage volunteers and marshals to support the event, where they will receive training and equipment.

So whether it is your first steps or an Olympian we look forward to seeing you on Porthcawl seafront at 9am on Saturday and every Saturday; and what better way than starting the weekend, enjoying the delights of the Glamorgan coastline, and having a coffee with friends, in the many cafes that populate the seafront and town.

Brodi (6) shows plenty of promise

READERS will be aware that Pyle and Kenfig Golf Club Junior section has performed very well over recent years, with many trophies locked away in the clubhouse.

Following in their footsteps is Brodi Lewis who is showing great promise at a very early age by winning the Welsh Mini Masters Championship at Celtic Manor recently.

There were in excess of 70 in the under-7s section initially and this was reduced to 7 by way of qualifying stages. Brodi, age 6, was the youngest in his group and went on to win.

Brodi's successes continue; at the Lee Westwood Golf Camp at Thornbury golf centre he excelled at the skills testing then went on to win the 9 hole par 3 comp with a score of 33.

Brodi was the youngest at camp as the other boys were aged between 9 and 11.

His skills score was 132 and the top 25 after all camps completed make the grand final where the winner is flown to the Lee Westwood Camp in Florida to train with Lee himself. There is a national leader board where Brodi is currently second!

We will follow this young star's development with interest.

Local stars honoured at Cardiff Met

Aled Sion Davies and Nathan Stephens at Cardiff Met.

BRIDGEND sporting stars Aled Sion Davies and Nathan Stephens were among the guests of honour as Cardiff Metropolitan University unveiled its Olympic Wall of Fame - a permanent celebration of the achievements and contributions made by staff, students and alumni at London 2012.

Aled, who took gold in the discus and World Champion Javelin thrower Nathan both feature on the colourful installation - situated within Cardiff Met's Cyncoed Campus main reception area - boasting images and details of the athletes, coaches and key representatives who undertook 2012 duties.

Other Cardiff Met sporting stars (past and present) earning a place on the wall include gold medalist Helen Glover (coxless pairs rowing), 1964 Olympics gold medal long jumper Lynn Davies - a British Olympic Association London 2012 ambassador; from the basketball court, Stef Collins and Rose Anderson as well as Mark Hawkins (handball), beach volleyball group admin team manager Yvonne Saker, hurdler Dai Greene and pistol shooter, Georgine Geikie.

BBC Olympic commentators John Inverdale, Colin Jackson CBE, Mitch Fenner and Brent Pope are among a host of others to feature.

Dave Cobner, dean of Cardiff School of Sport, addressed a packed audience gathered to witness the unveiling and praised the contributions of all those involved in making London 2012 such a spectacular event on the world stage.

Dave Cobner said: "London 2012 was unprecedented in the effect it had on the British public and through the various representatives being paid tribute to here, Cardiff Met had a very prominent role to play in this.

"For that reason it is right that the Wall of Fame has been created as a permanent reminder of the great efforts we witnessed - from both our star Welsh athletes and all the other key individuals involved - and I hope it will act as an inspiration to all who come here to study, work or visit.

"We're extremely proud of all those featured and if this tribute inspires just one more person to go on and become an Olympic or Paralympic medal winning athlete then it will have served its purpose." Speaking at the event, Gold medal winner Aled said: "I still don't think any of us can really explain the feelings involved in being part of such a momentous occasion and to now be honoured by our university for our efforts is a very proud moment.

"It was important to us all that we came along to see the wall being unveiled - if a bit surreal to see all our faces up there, especially as I'm still a student here and will pass it every day!"

"Cardiff Met has always supported my sporting efforts and I know we're all delighted that the university has chosen to mark our achievements in this way."

'Plaque of honour' for indoor bowling club

"Ogwr have a sterling record of success in indoor bowls for nearly 30 years and the selection of Paul Taylor as captain of the Welsh under-25 team puts the icing on the cake", said Arthur.

Primary schools face-off in hockey tournament

Over 100 pupils from primary schools in Bridgend County Borough have competed in a hockey tournament at Bryntirion Comprehensive School.

Bridgend County Borough Council's Active Young People department teamed up with Hockey Wales and Bryntirion Comprehensive School to organise the tournament, which saw teams from Oldcastle and Nantymoel Primaries and Llangewydd and Bryntirion Juniors go head to head for the title.

Year 10 students from comprehensive schools across the county borough also played a key role in running the tournament as part of the AYPD Leadership Programme which aims to improve young people's leadership skills, offering them a pathway into a career within sports development.

Nantymoel Primary's mixed team of pupils from years three to six were victorious on the day, and will go on to represent the county borough at the national final in Newtown later this month, competing against 23 other Welsh schools.

The tournament formed part of a wider initiative which aims to provide young people in the county borough with essential hockey skills and more opportunities to play the sport. As part of this, Hockey Wales is setting up a satellite hockey club at Bryntirion Comprehensive School, which will encourage young people to further improve their playing skills and feed into Bridgend Hockey Club.

Coun Lyn Morgan, Bridgend County Borough Council's Cabinet Member for Wellbeing, said: "It's important that we continue working with our partners to offer sporting opportunities to young people and help keep them active and healthy. Best of luck to Nantymoel at the national final - Bridgend County Borough is right behind you!"

Blind people now on target

THE Tondur Target Shooting Club pride ourselves in the provisions that we make for the disabled to be able to take up the sport of target shooting and a year ago it was decided that we should install a facility to enable the blind and visually impaired to try the sport on an equal footing with sighted shooters.

A taster session was held during May 2012 and everyone agreed that we should progress the facility. There have been hiccups along the way but we are now in a position to install and use the equipment, with the help of a development grant from Sport Wales.

When it is mentioned that the blind can try target shooting eyebrows are raised. However, it is possible with the system being based on some specialist equipment.

A purpose made acoustic sight from an optics manufacturer in Austria is fitted to a dedicated target air rifle and the shooter connects to it through a set of headphones. At the target end a bright light is shone on the target, which is white in the centre and shaded out to black on the outside.

The sight registers the brightness of the light and sends a sound to the shooter which varies in pitch as the centre of the target is aimed at. The sound is very much like that which a metal detector emits and increases in pitch as the sight finds the centre of the target.

There are two other facilities in Wales, one in Pembroke Dock and one in Bangor, so ours will only be the third installation in the Principality and could well produce shooters to go on to the European and World Target Shooting Championships etc, not forgetting the Paralympics, of course.

On Friday, April 5, at around 11am, the facility will be officially opened, with Marlene Thomas, the Bridgend County Borough Mayor, and Huw Irranca Davies, MP for the Ogwr constituency, in attendance.

Blind and visually impaired members from Bridgeville, the Bridgend and district Visually Impaired Society, will be using the equipment.

Bill Phelps, president, Tondur Target Shooting Club

Under-16s reach Osprey Cup final!

PENCOED under-16s travelled down to Newbridge fields over the weekend to play against local rivals, Bridgend Athletic, in the Osprey Cup semi-final; both teams were looking for a win and a trip to St. Helens for a final.

The game started off quickly, and Bridgend Athletic were awarded a penalty, which was converted by Harrison Evans.

After a long kick down field, which Aled Ben Jones chased, a mistake by Pencoed saw Ben score a try. Pencoed pulled themselves together and followed suit, as Chris Cooper scored the second try of the day, giving the Ath a 8 - 5 lead at halftime.

Pencoed came back in force in the second half, and with some good tackling from the forwards and good handling of the ball from the backs, kept the Ath off their try line. Both teams fought well, and a surprise drop goal from Pencoed's centre, Morgan Jones, from the halfway line, brought the score to 8-8, which is how the game finished.

As the Athletic had the home advantage, Pencoed were awarded the win and will now go up against Ystradgynlais in their second Osprey Cup final.

The Pencoed coaches would like to thank all the boys for their hard work and determination throughout the Osprey Cup process.

Squad: Jordan Fox, Dylan-winn Davies, Lloyd Webb, Morgan Jones, Ellis Griffiths, Alex King, Chris Cooper, Morgan Jefferies, Daniel Maiden, Lewis Brennan, Scott Ewing, Steffan Jones, Cole Lewis, Jac Briggs, James Merchant, Jamie Dyer, Liam Bowen, Joshua Maunder, Aled Bargery, Matthew Ellis, Owain Clarke and Patrick Canham.

Lions bring May Fair to Cowbridge

L LANTWIT MAJOR and Cowbridge Lions Club are starting off their fundraising for 2013 with a sale of second hand books in Llantwit Major on Saturday, March 23, starting at 9.30am and finishing at 4pm.

The planning for this is now well advanced with all of the stage acts booked and over 60 stalls will be on the Bear Field. So far 52 stalls have either been confirmed or have pledged to come along to this event and the Lions are confident that all the plots they have available will be taken.

A spokesman for the Lions said: "We have had a very good response from craft workers and various organisations for this event. There will be a good selection of stalls for people to find out about local organisations and to purchase goods from the many stalls selling crafts."

On Saturday, April 6, the Lions will be in Cowbridge running two events. There will be the annual diabetes screening session in the Lesser Hall and also they will be in Waitrose car park with a second hand book sale. More details of these event will follow nearer the date.

On April 12, they are holding an inter-schools quiz for teams from Llantwit Major, Cowbridge and surrounding areas. The quiz will be held in the town hall; Llantwit Major and all schools eligible have been contacted.

Bank Holiday Monday, May 6, will see the first Cowbridge May Fair to be run by the Lions.

"The stage has a variety of acts including local band The Lake Marines, St Donat's Choral and the Rock Choir. "On the field there will be a Maypole with demonstrations and a chance to have a go yourself, children's races, plus one or two for the mums and dads, a bonny baby event, and we still hope to hold a tug of war competition."

If you would like to find out more about Lions or any of the above events they can be contacted by email at info@lmandclions.org.uk or via their website at www.lmandclions.org.uk

Under-10s' rugby festival

COWBRIDGE under-10s travelled to the Chippingham rugby festival to compete against a range of teams from across the south west of England.

Different rules saw the boys contesting line outs and scrums for the first time in their careers.

Cowbridge took first opponents Stow on the Wold by surprise with quick hands in attack and a solid defensive line, leading to a 2-1 win in their first game.

The second pool game against Corsham was destined to be a tough call but Cowbridge kept calm and didn't let Corsham dominate possession.

The creation of excellent turnover opportunities backed up by expansive attacking play enabled Cowbridge to secure a second win for the morning, 1-0.

The third game was against Stroud, who took a confident Cowbridge side by surprise in the first few minutes of the game. Cowbridge soon regathered their composure and a hard battle ensued.

However, Cowbridge couldn't pull back from an early Stroud try and they lost 1-0.

The final pool game was against Bradford on Avon and Cowbridge had to fight hard to remain in the tournament's cup competition.

Cowbridge had stepped up their performance and made it look easy as they sucked the Bradford on Avon backs into a ruck situation before spreading the ball wide to a relatively easy 2-1 win and a place in the semi final against Bath.

A fast and open battle littered with crunching tackles and dubious refereeing decisions, resulted in a 1-0 defeat to the spa town locals and the end of a tough day for Cowbridge.

All boys performed admirably with particularly heroic performances from Iwan-Thomas Bartle, Tom Pugh, Rhys Williams, Jack Reilly and Joe Marshan.

A huge thank you from all parents to the coaching team for organising such a successful day of encouragement which expanded the players' development.

Swimmers show strength in long distance swim

RECENTLY the swimmers of Barry Amateur Swimming Club took part in the annual Long Distance Postal Swim, which is run by the British Long Distance Swimming Association.

Over half of the swimmers in the club took part in this event which is fantastic. This event takes place throughout the whole of the country for all swimmers of all ages and abilities during January and February.

The aim of the event is to see how far the swimmers can swim in an hour, and the swimming club uses this event as a marker every year to see how the swimmers are improving with their stamina and swimming abilities.

This year, as in the past, they have surpassed themselves, swimming fantastic distances for such young swimmers. The age for this event is taken from January 2013.

In the boys 8 and under age group Ben Ewington improved his previous distance by a massive 39 lengths to swim a total distance of 2825 metres of the Barry Leisure Center swimming pool, which is 113 lengths.

Not far behind was Monty Griffiths also aged 8, who swam 95 lengths which is a distance of 2375 metres, improving on his last years distance by 11 lengths.

Swimming in the 9 year age group, Thomas Pugh improved his distance by 350 metres swimming 111 lengths in the time which is 2775 metres. Ben Curran, aged 9, swam a total of 2075 metres which is 83 lengths and improved on last year by 7 lengths.

Swimming for the first time, Joseph Tailby, aged 9, swam a very good distance of 78 lengths which is 1950 metres. Also swimming for the first time, having not been long in the club, was 9 year old Ellis Young who swam 77 lengths which is 1925 metres.

Iestyn Perkins, swimming in the 10 year old age group, did an impressive swim by improving his distance by 17 lengths by swimming a total of 117 lengths which is 2925 metres. Cori Reed in the 10 year age groups swimming for the first time completed a very good distance of 103 lengths which is 2575 metres while 11 year old Declan Ewington swam a distance of 129 lengths which is 3225 metres of the pool.

James Hamer (12) swam an impressive distance of 3775 metres, which is 151 lengths of the pool. He improved on his last years distance by 8 lengths which is 200 metres. Having not been able to swim this event last year 12 year old Shaun Bowden swam a very good distance of 3600 metres which is 144 lengths of the pool.

Samual Smith, aged 12, completed a very good distance of 3000 metres which is 120 lengths. Swimming the event for the first time Alec Czyzyski (aged 12) having not long joined the club, swam a very good distance of 2200 metres which is 88 lengths.

In the 13 year age group Jack Parry swam a fantastic distance of 3725 metres which is 149 lengths improving on last year by 19 lengths which is very good. Battling it out with Jack was 13 year old Ryan Connor, who managed to complete just one length less and swim a distance of 3725 metres.

Coach Craig Wheeler showed the swimmers what he could do by swimming the event for the first time and swam a very good 113 lengths which is a distance of 2825 metres.

In the girls 8 and under age group Gwenna Davies, swimming the event for the first time, had a very good swim and completed 91 lengths which is a distance of 2275 metres.

Swimming for the second year Kate Parry did a fantastic swim and completed 2250 metres which is 90 lengths of the pool, improving on her distance of last year by a massive 47 lengths which is 1200 metres. 8 year old Lilly Vann, who has not been with the club long, swimming for the first time in this event, completed a very good distance of 1950 metres which is 78 lengths.

In the 9 year age group which was the largest this year, Ellie Ingram swam a fantastic distance of 2750 metres which is 110 lengths improving on last year by 325 metres.

All the other 9 year old girls were swimming for the first time while Georgia Carr swam a very good total of 103 lengths which is 2575 metres.

Having only just joined the club, Isobel Stevens completed 94 lengths which is 2350 metres.

Anna Mears swam a very good distance of 2000 metres which is 80 lengths of the pool. Emilia Knevet did a very good swim and swam 1950 metres which is 78 lengths and having not been in the club long, Niamh Hunter swam a total of 1875 metres which is 75 lengths. Not far behind was Katherine Beddoe who is also new to the club, and who swam a very good distance of 1650 metres which is 66 lengths.

In the 10 year old age group Caitlin Williams improved on her last years distance by an impressive 26 lengths to complete 108 lengths of the pool which is 2700 metres. New to the club and swimming the event for the first time was Pia Sully who swam 82 lengths which is 2050 metres.

Bethan Williams (12) swam a very good distance of 3700 metres which is 148 lengths of the pool and improved on her distance of last year by 250 metres; 13 year old Llinos Goodland have only just recovered from a skiing injury completed a distance of 134 lengths which was 3350 metres and still managed to improve on her last years swim by 150 metres.

Having yet again the top swim in the club and also for the past few years, 15 year old Georgia Looker swam a fantastic distance of 4000 metres which is 160 lengths of the pool.

Not to be outdone by her sister, 15 year old Ffion Goodland swam a very good distance of 3625 metres which is 145 lengths.

Ffion improved her distance of last year by 75 metres while Menna Jones (15) had a very good swim and swam 115 lengths of the pool which is 2875 metres.

Competing in the event for the third year running was coach Claire Parry. In previous years she has competed she has come second in her age group so she is aiming for gold this year.

Claire swam a very impressive distance of 3700 metres, which is 148 lengths of the pool, and improved on last year's distance by 100 metres so she might be in with a chance of the gold; the club will not find out the result of this countrywide event until July.

A big thank you must go to all the helpers who helped to count during the event as without them this event would not be able to be run.

Barry Amateur Swimming Club is always looking for new members to join the club so if you would like a trial, please phone Mrs Heulwen Cooper on 01446 733784.

We swim at Barry Leisure Centre on Monday, Friday and Sunday and Cardiff International Pool on Monday and Thursday. For more information please also look on the Barry Amateur Swimming Club's website. TW

NEWS FROM PENARTH RAMBLERS

River Taff walk is steeped in history

A GROUP of 11 walkers (with Jodie the dog) gathered at Llandaff village for an easy walk along both sides of the River Taff, and some interesting history.

Pam and Krys led the group past Llandaff Cathedral, built in 1107, and which after the Reformation fell into a state of ruin. In 1734, restoration began and has been ongoing ever since.

Making their way through the ancient churchyard to the River Taff and past Llandaff Weir they crossed to the eastern bank of the Taff, making their way past Gabalfa and Blackweir on part of the Taff Trail to reach Bute Park, where the busy life of the city seems a million miles away.

There aren't many capital cities which have a magnificent castle right in the centre and over 2,000 years of history lie behind the walls of this one, and the painter William Turner even visited on his tour of Wales in 1798.

After 1766, the castle was owned by the Bute family, who amassed their fortune from the second Marquess of Bute, who turned Cardiff docks into the greatest coal exporting port in the world, passing his fortune on to his son John who, by the 1860s, was reputed to be the richest man in the world.

Bute Park is one of the largest urban parks in Wales and is listed on CADW's register of landscapes. Between 1873 and 1903, Andrew Pettigrew a much-acclaimed gardener and horticulturist laid out the parkland as a private pleasure garden for the Bute family, and contained in the park is an arboretum. Gorsedd stones and the old Blackfriars site, where the second most important friary in Wales stood, now marked only by some stones.

The area was packed with runners taking part in the annual St David's Day charity race as the group made their way to the west lodge which, since 2012, has been converted into a vintage style tearoom and gift shop and is named the Pettigrew Tearoom.

Leaving the park through a handsome carved wooden door which stands near to the most photographed part of the castle – the Animal Wall designed by William Burges for the 3rd Marquess of Bute – they entered the hustle and noise of city life and crossed Cardiff Bridge.

Then, continuing on the western bank of the Taff, they returned to Llandaff passing Sophia Gardens, the National Sports Centre, the cricket ground, Pontcanna Fields and the busy Western Avenue after a delightful five mile walk.

On March 16, a change to the programme, meet 9am at the Barry Waterfront for a 7.5-mile moderate walk in the Wenvoe and St Nicholas area; contact Barbara on 01446 794313.

The midweek walk on March 19 will leave Cogan Leisure Centre at 9.30am for an eight mile moderate walk from Bonvilston; contact Louise/Alison on 029 2070 6106.

Wear suitable clothing, preferably boots and carry waterproofs, food and drinks. Some degree of fitness is required and if you are in any doubt, then please contact the walk leader for advice.

To follow the group please log onto www.penarthramblers.wordpress.com. Rucksack badges, programmes and membership advice can be obtained from Pam on 029 2025 5102.

'Let us pray for you' says local church

LAST month Vale Church completed a day of continuous 24-hour prayer.

This was a great achievement and a significant milestone in our short history.

Commencing at 8am, there was at least one person praying for the next 24-hour cycle.

The gospels record that Jesus had cause to pray all night and it is a pattern which we want to follow.

The next 24-hour prayer session is on Wednesday, March 20. We want to bless the community as much as possible and welcome any requests for prayer.

You do not have to be a Christian or have any particular belief system. Whatever your concerns or worries, we will commit to pray for you for 24 hours.

Whether your problems are financial, ill health, relationships or addiction we would like to hear from you.

Provide as much or little detail as wished even if it's just initials or first name.

You can send a text to Neil on 07870 168154 or drop a note in at Vale Church, Unit 4, The Old Hall, Cowbridge. Look us up at www.valechurch.vpweb.co.uk.

Churches Together in spring talk

CHURCHES Together in Cowbridge and District are holding our spring talk on Tuesday, March 19 in the United Free Church in Cowbridge, at 7.30pm for 8pm.

The speaker is Mike McNamee, Professor of Applied Ethics at Swansea University and the title of the talk is 'Suffering, Salvation and Sport: the doping controversy and why it matters'.

There is no charge, everyone is welcome to attend and donations will be gratefully received. RS

Big Screen welcomes Affleck's Argo

BIG SCREEN'S next film is Argo (Cert 15) on Thursday, March 21 at 7.30pm (doors open 7.10pm) in the Town Hall, Cowbridge.

In 1980, a joint CIA-Canadian operation mounted a daring raid to extract six fugitive American diplomatic personnel out of revolutionary Iran. Tony Mendez (Ben Affleck) devised a cunning plan involving a film crew to rescue the hostages. The film won this year's Oscar for Best Picture.

Tickets £4 (available in advance from the Town Clerk's office or on the door).

Gwyn drives off in style for farmer's golf society!

Another successful day on the golf course!

THE opening meeting of the season for members of the Glamorgan Farmers' Golf Society was held recently at Southerndown Golf Club with incoming captain Gwyn Thomas launching the traditional opening shot to commence proceedings witnessed by the 41 members and guests assembled at the first tee.

Attaching a little back spin to his tee shot, and also having to contend with the sloping fairway, Gwyn's ball came to rest a little closer to its starting position than many had predicted.

It was somewhat ironic therefore that the member of society who correctly guessed the distance of Gwyn's opening tee shot was his father David, who willingly accepted the prize of a bottle of malt whisky.

Another welcoming sight for the members and guests was the very spring-like weather that was something not enjoyed for quite some time and which hopefully would be a feature of the season ahead.

The day's event, kindly sponsored by Mr Glyn Watts-Jones, turned out to be a closely contested competition with the outcome finally decided on scores over the last six holes separating eventual winner Mark Rees from runner up Brian Jones, who both scored 34 stableford points.

Mark was particularly pleased to receive the Southerndown Cup from Mr Glyn Watts-Jones who had enjoyed a lifetime friendship with Mark's father Mr Islwyn Rees who passed away earlier last year.

Aubrey Bowen finished third with 33 points and in fourth place was Neil McLean with 32 points.

Wille Morgan's guest Bryan Edwards won the guest section with 34 points followed with Charles Vicary who scored 32 points. Ian Kelsall, playing the course for the first time off a handicap of four, returned a very respectable 31 points to finish third while Keith Gibson hit one of his better shots during the last 12 months to win the Bear Hotel, Cowbridge-sponsored longest drive competition.

Mike King, Keith Wilding, Jim Hayes and Tosh Taylor won the Llanerch Vineyard and Restaurant sponsored prizes by being nearest the pin on the par three holes. Neil McLean correctly guessed 25 balls would fail to return home with the majority buried in the deep gorse that is a feature of this well maintained links course to collect the Premier Turf sponsored bottle of whisky that resulted in £75 being raised for Ty Hafan charity.

The society's next meeting is scheduled for Thursday, March 28 at Bargoed Golf Club and will be sponsored by Hire One Ltd.

Pairs winners

DAVE and Debbie Lea (pictured either side of Bridgend Bridge Club chairman Steve Burgoyne) were the winners of the 2013 club handicap pairs competition held over two weeks.

Paralympic swimmer Rhiannon Henry, coach Ragan Hagalstein and the Vale of Glamorgan's disability Sport Wales development officer joined talented local swimmers for the launch of the Vale Disability Swimming Academy.

New disability swimming academy is launched

A NEW disability swimming academy has been launched in the Vale to help nurture the next generation of Welsh Paralympians.

The new academy, based at Barry Leisure Centre, will give talented swimmers aged from 11 upwards access to top quality coaching and the chance to become classified to compete in regional and national competitions.

The academy has been set up in partnership by Swim Wales, the Vale Council and Parkwood Community Leisure, and it is open to swimmers from the Vale as well as those from further afield.

As the academy is being run as a competitive club rather than a recreational one there are minimum requirements for potential participants. Swimmers need to have either achieved level five of the 'Learn to Swim' National Plan for Teaching, or be able to swim 50 metres in a recognised swimming stroke.

Rhiannon Henry, one of Wales' most successful Paralympic swimmers, was the special guest to celebrate the new academy's launch. Rhiannon, from Bridgend, competed for Team GB in the last three Paralympics and won two bronze medals at the 2004 Games in Athens.

The Vale Disability Swimming Academy trains at Barry Leisure Centre every Wednesday between 6pm and 7.30pm, with additional training sessions planned.

If you are interested in joining the academy, please contact Simon Jones on 01446 704728.

UNDER-15S WIN TOURNAMENT

COWBRIDGE under-15s' coaches Dan Williams and Ed Lucas took the squad to St. Peter's RFC to compete in a 12-a-side tournament with some excellent teams attending on a bitterly cold day in Cardiff.

In the group stage Cowbridge beat all of the sides faced - the host side of St. Peter's RFC, Penarth RFC, Caerleon RFC plus the impressive Abergavenny RFC, without conceding a point; the fast moving backline of Cowbridge being able to work well after the forwards had started slowly but increasingly dominated the ball at the breakdown.

The semi-final was played against Rhiwbina RFC, which Cowbridge won 17 - 7 and shipped the only try that they would concede in the entire tournament.

The final was a repeat match against Abergavenny with Cowbridge running out 15-0 victors to the delight of the coaches, team and parents.

Tom Lucas was deservedly awarded player of the tournament by the organisers.

Try a new sport - FOR FREE!

LOCAL sports clubs have joined forces with the Vale Council's sports and play development team to offer free taster sessions throughout March.

All ages can have a go at a range of sports including sea rowing, football, tennis, shooting, netball, dance, trampolining and badminton. The taster sessions are part of the Vale Council's 'Make it Happen 2013' campaign, which aims to build on the momentum of the London 2012 Games and inspire local people to get involved in sport this year.

Whether it be to have a go at something new, join a club, or get into sports coaching or volunteering, the campaign hopes to make the Vale more active during 2013 and help budding sportsmen and women achieve their potential.

Cllr Gwyn John, the Vale Council's Cabinet Member for Leisure, said: "A number of sports clubs are being really proactive by offering these free sessions and it is a great way to kick-off the 'Make it Happen 2013' campaign. There has been much talk about the 'legacy' of the London 2012 Games and these sessions are an example of the positive work being done by local sports clubs to capitalise on the success of last summer and encourage people to get involved in sport, whatever their age or ability."

Board Riders claim trophy

northerly winds struck Rest Bay, Porthcawl as it hosted the annual Wilkinson Sword Surf competition between Llantwit Board Riders, Welsh Coast Surf Club and Channel Coast Surf Club on Sunday, March 10.

The winds were a favourable offshore but just a little strong, making the 3-4 foot waves very steep and difficult to catch. The day started well for L.B.R. with their team winning the women's, boys under-18s, seniors and longboard heats with Channel Coast winning the boys under-14s, cadets under-16s and girls under-18s heats; W.C.S.C. could only win the Masters category.

L.B.S. went into the final five Open heats with a comfortable lead but the Welsh Coast Surf Club weren't going to be beaten without a fight.

W.C.S.A.'s Ingama won the first heat comfortably while W.C.S.A.'s Craig Farnworth showed exceptional form to beat the skilled Ezra Hames in heat 2.

James J from L.B.A. won the third heat with a fine show of skill but W.C.S.A.'s Greg Owen and Chris Seage won heats 4 and 5 to bring the contest to a deadlock.

Despite the comeback from the Welsh Coast boys it just wasn't enough to get ahead of the Llantwit team with just two points separating the two teams from victory and second place. Llantwit Board Riders now hold the Wilkinson Sword trophy and, being the current champions, will host next year's competition.

PS

Dropped points by AFC as silly errors cost them

LLANTWIT MAJOR AFC welcomed Risca United to their Windmill Lane ground for their Welsh League fixture on a pleasant but cold afternoon.

The game got underway and the Major were quickly on the defensive with the visitors putting a good shot just over the bar in the early minutes. That pressure continued as the home side constantly kept giving the ball away and playing poor options when the simple pass was the sensible and obvious thing to do.

Risca scored on 12 minutes following some further slack defensive play and they then had two shots blocked on the line with Rees and Pratt the home-side heroes. Things improved slightly for the Major as the game progressed but they constantly put themselves under pressure by their inability to find unmarked players and constantly gave easy ball away by trying difficult moves on the wet and bumpy surface.

The Llantwit equaliser came out of the blue when a powerful cross from the left was headed into his own goal by the Risca centre-half and the Llantwit bench breathed a sigh of relief as this was totally against the run of play.

Half-time came and to the relief of the critical and regular home supporters the Major abandoned their 3-5-2 formation and reverted to a conventional 4 at the back with Andy Shaw returning to the line-up.

This made a huge difference and the Major started to play some good football and were keeping the ball in the visiting team's half for long periods and taking greater control of the game.

The Major then took the lead when Lee Jones sparked into life beat a defender and found Stewart Lindsay in space and he scored well. Further chances came for the Major and Lindsay had another good chance saved well by the Risca keeper.

Both teams made substitutions and with 10 minutes to go the Major looked to have the game sewn up. Then they conceded several silly free kicks around their own penalty area and incurred yellow cards for Jones and Pratt.

Then Rhys Gould gave away a needless penalty which was initially well saved by Lansdown but was converted from the rebound.

The single point took the Major back to third place and with games in hand promotion is possible this season but only if some improvement is made by the squad towards their play and discipline.

Squad: Lansdown, Cox, Gould, Robinson, Faux, Rees, Pratt, Jones, Lindsay, Griffiths, Nash, Morgan, Whitlam, Shaw and Constant.

The Major are at home again this weekend and welcome Newcastle Emlyn, kick off 2.30pm. The club wish to thank their sponsors Watts and Morgan, MPI Aviation and The GEM for their continued support.

PL

Boxers shine at event

LLANTWIT MAJOR BOXING club were at Grange Albions sports social club in Grange town recently.

On the bill were two promising young boxers who put on a fantastic display to win both contests; first up was 14-year-old prospect Ryan Hughes, and his opponent was Josh Hartly from Prince of Wales amateur boxing club.

The bout got off to a fast start with both lads showing good skills and determination. The first two rounds were hard to score with both boys very evenly matched; the third round saw Ryan's superior skill and fitness come into play with straight right hands, scoring with the cleaner shots to secure a unanimous win on the judges' score cards.

Second up was a very determined Dale John, boxing Byron James of Somerton ABC.

Dale was making a comeback after five years out of the game and started cautiously, using his speed and boxing brain to edge his way into the bout against the big punching, stronger James.

After losing the first round, he upped the pace and took it to the Somerton lad, forcing him to fight at close quarters.

Dale, using his superior speed, took the second round, and after taking on board the instructions from his corner, he stepped it up and caught James with right uppercuts at close quarters, forcing the pace right to the final bell.

The Llantwit boxer took a well earned decision on all three judges' score cards in a very hard fought and exciting bout.

COWBRIDGE DARTS

Annie and Steve are the champions

ON Tuesday, March 5, the mixed doubles competition was completed.

This year's champions are Annie Daily & Steve Simmonite (Edmond's A) who defeated Pam Rosser & Clive Williams (Came Arms) 3-0 in the final.

Also there was a rearranged league match, the top of the table clash between the Edmond's B and Llanharry. Despite Lee Davies (Llanharry) hitting a 180 in one of the games, the Edmond's B's 7-2 victory was just enough to take them back to the top of the table.

Present league standings: Edmond's B (76 points), Llanharry (75), Edmond's A (55), Hare and Hounds (52), Came Arms (42), White Lion (41), Farmers Arms (39), Cross Inn & Old Post Ladies (33), Highwayman Inn (31).

On March 19 the semi-finals and final of the Clive Blick Trophy will be played at the Edmond's Arms.

In the first semi-final Amanda Hole, Joan Burt and Mark Duhig (Old Post Ladies) will play Mo Fleming, Rob Jones and Nigel Thomas (Farmers Arms). In the other semi-final Kay Bromham, Ian Bromham and John Bater (White Lion) will play Pam Rosser, Mark Dowling and Jason Cooke (Came Arms). All matches start at 8.30pm and spectators are always welcome.

For further information or any enquiries please e-mail Paul at cowbridgedarts@googlemail.com; up-to-date information on upcoming matches, league results and the league table can be found at www.darts.apsn.co.uk.

Suzuki SX4 a quirky little number!

ROBUST and versatile...two words that spring to mind when I am confronted by the Suzuki SX4 DDiS, the 4x4 hatchback.

A switch allows the driver to select between two- and four-wheel drive, which is useful in this day and age of increasingly expensive fuel.

Vehicles are always more efficient when in two-wheel drive and this is great for typical day-to-day use. Four-wheel drive is ideal for challenging winter conditions or the occasional bit of off-roading. Being able to switch between the two while you're driving is really useful. Compare this to a Land Rover 90 where you have to be stationary to perform this move and I am already impressed.

Interestingly when my first daughter Harriett was born in February 2011, the petrol SX4 was the first vehicle she experienced when I drove her home from hospital.

When my second daughter Heidi was born a day before Harriett in the same month, she too was driven home from hospital in an SX4 but this time a diesel version.

I like Suzuki vehicles in the same way that I appreciate Land Rovers. They both have an excellent no messing about reputation and can be relied upon in most circumstances.

The test takes place in high winds and when I manoeuvre into the outside lane of the motorway there is an unsettling banging from the roof, which does make me question what it is for a moment.

I am sure it is the flexible roof mounted radio aerial – and although this has not happened to me in any other vehicle – I plough on regardless – my second daughter needs to see her father and vice versa.

Arriving at the hospital my opinion of the aerial seems to be correct. I suggest this should be removed and the aerial fitted somewhere else on the vehicle.

Inside, the black plastic interior is no doubt hardwearing and although the seats are reasonably comfortable there is little inspiration as you can see from the video at testdrives.biz.

No matter how hard I try, I cannot find my favourite radio station but the steering wheel mounted cruise control is easy to use.

There is a raised driving position when compared to a standard hatchback and this gives a more commanding view of the road.

I actually prefer this two-litre diesel engine to the 1.6-litre petrol I tested previously for two reasons. First, it is pretty gutsy and second it delivers much better fuel economy, although it is much more expensive to purchase than the petrol version. On the motorway it is noisy but consistently delivers over 50mpg.

Parkers, the car experts, say: "The Suzuki SX4 is a bit of an oddy. It's a five-door hatchback, similar to the Suzuki Swift, but it comes with a chunky off-roader look and is available with four-wheel drive. The result is a slightly quirky cross between the two but it's also a success. It's practical and roomy inside, very comfortable on the move and handles well too with positive steering and an agile nature. At this price level, the Suzuki comes into conflict with too many far more talented crossovers and SUVs, such as the Nissan Qashqai and Skoda Yeti."

The boot is a good size and there is room inside for five adults, all of which makes for good family transport.

New price range:

£12,595 - £17,699 Engine: 2-litre diesel; Power: 133bhp; 0-60mph: 11.2secs; Economy: over 50mpg.

Steeplechase heads for Ystradowen

ON Saturday, March 23, at Ystradowen, the Glamorgan Hunt stage what are now the only steeplechases in the Vale as there will be no more racing at Redlands Farm, Bonvilston.

The traditional point to point is an event where families can enjoy an informal day at the races and get really close up to the thrills and spills of jump racing. There will be caterers, bars, side-shows, and trade stands, as well as bookmakers to have a bet on your fancy. There is plenty of room for children to run around in the country air, and all aged under 16 get in free. Admission for car and driver is £10 with £5 for every other adult.

Follow the signs on the A4222 between Cowbridge and Pontyclun; first race 2pm.

For further information contact the secretary, Peter Thomas, on 01446 774310 (home) 07855366902 (mobile) or e-mail peter+liz@talktalk.net.

Competition success for TAOW

THE Tae Kwon Do Federation of Wales has hosted yet another successful competition.

On February 16, 94 competitors entered the competition held at Ogmere Comprehensive School sports hall; the day went very smoothly with students showing great skill and determination.

The whole event was enjoyed by students and spectators alike and TAOW came away with a fantastic 18 gold, 19 silver, and 28 bronze medals, totalling an impressive 65 medal haul. Thank you to all participants and officials for making this event as successful as possible.

If you are interested in joining our very popular and friendly club please go to our website for more details, www.taowales.co.uk.
